FIDELITY TRUST
EMPLOYEE GIVEN
TWO-YEAR TERME. L. Mahlewski Sentenced to Reformatory for Making False Entry, on His Plea of Guilty.GOVERNMENT DROPS 9 OTHER CHARGESDefense Attorney Tells Court Client Did Not Profit by Fraud on Bank
Now Closed.

Edward L. Mahlewski, secretary of the closed Fidelity Bank & Trust Co. at 1122 Washington avenue, was sentenced to two years in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe by Judge Faris today when he pleaded guilty of making a false entry in one of the bank's accounts.

In consideration of his plea the government dismissed nine, other counts in the indictment charging falsification of $21,980 by endorsement, false entries and false reports to the Comptroller of the Currency in violation of the national banking act.

In a statement for the government, Assistant United States Attorney Purkett told the court that Mahlewski's fall from honesty constituted "a mysterious case" in that he did not use the stolen money in arguings of spending nor gambling.

"It is true that he made false entries," said Mahlewski's lawyer, William Baer, "but they were made at no profit to him. There is a peculiar situation existing in the bank with which I am somewhat familiar through my connection with other cases growing out of its failure."

Mahlewski, Baer told the court, is 35 years old, and resides with his wife, and a six-year-old child. His home is at 6030 Magnolia avenue.

The specific crime of which Mahlewski pleaded guilty was regarding a fictitious withdrawal of $1000 from the account of Katie Ramonowicz, one of the bank's clients.

The Fidelity Bank & Trust Co. was closed on Oct. 22, 1931, by its directors because of frozen assets. Claims against it filed last April by Hans Wolff, special deputy finance commissioner, totaled $1,400,000. Assets were inventoried at that time at $1,774,607, bank value, but their liquidating value was said to be doubtful.

HOOVER IS PHOTOGRAPHED WITH TWO LIVE ELEPHANTS

They Are Taken to White House by Delegation From Young Republican League.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Two elephants, symbolic of the G. O. P. one of them carrying a banner, "This is an elephant's job and not a time for donkey business," today stopped on the White House lawn to serve as background for a photograph of President Hoover and delegation from the Young Republican League.

Kenneth Uglow, president of the league, gave the President an elephant symbol for his lapel and said his group was prepared "to pledge that on Nov. 8, 5,000,000 young men and women throughout the country will cast their votes to re-elect you President of the United States."

The two elephants, Eva, 32 years old, and Danny, 33, were borrowed from a theater for the occasion. Immediately afterwards, the President stood with a delegation of knights of Pythias, some of them in uniform, who answered a call of their leader for "three cheers for Hoover" as the President departed.

MISSIONARY CAPTIVE IS REPORTED SLAINMinneapolis Minister Has Been Prisoner in China for Two Years.

By the Associated Press.
PEIPING, Oct. 27.—American authorities said today Consul-General Adams at Hankow was investigating reports from missionary sources that Chinese Communists had killed the Rev. Bert Nelson of Minneapolis, Minn., who they had been holding two years.

Chinese reports to Adams recently were that the Rev. Mr. Nelson was in good health, but had been removed to the northern part of Hupeh province by the so-called "Red Army No. 1" under pressure of the drive by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek against the bandits. The missionary advised that Nelson was being held by two years.

Nelson was captured by the Communist army operating, then, as now, in the western provinces. Oct. 5, 1930, at Kwangshan, Honan. With the Rev. K. N. Tveit of St. Paul and nearly 100 Chinese captives, Nelson was taken to the Communist army headquarters at Hwanggan, Hupeh, where he remained for about a year.

In April, 1931, the Communists reduced their original ransom demand of $35,000 to $2500 each for Nelson and Tveit. The Norwegian Lutheran church in America paid the $2500, but only Tveit was released, the kidnappers declaring a supply of gasoline had been asked for had not arrived.

By the Associated Press.
DELHI, India, Oct. 27.—Mahatma Gandhi, who was imprisoned on Jan. 4 for reviving his campaign of civil disobedience, will not be released, Viceroy Willingdon said today, until he makes a declaration disassociating himself entirely from the civil disobedience movement.

This statement was contained in a letter from the Viceroy to Maulana Shaukat Ali, who had asked that Gandhi be released to attend the Sikh-Hindu-Muslim conference on communal differences to be held at Allahabad, Nov. 5.

ABROGATION OF NEW YORK
STATUTORY PAY RATES URGEDMerchants' Association Sends Telegram to Gov. Roosevelt Urging Special Legislative Session.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The Merchants' Association of New York City sent a telegram to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today urging him to call a special session of the Legislature to consider abrogation of all statutory salary rates and also to permit reopening of all local budgets.

The budget opening was asked so that relief to taxpayers made possible by abrogation of statutory salary rates might be made immediately effective.

Fugitive Lassoed in River.
By the Associated Press.
ALEXANDRIA, Va., Oct. 27.—Thomas B. Hood, 24 years old, of Huntington, W. Va., sentenced to 30 days on a charge of disorderly conduct, broke away from officers today, ran three blocks to the Potomac river, jumped in fully clothed and swam half way across its mile width before he was captured. They had to lasso him. Western style, after the boat overhauled him, for Hood dived and forestalled grasping hands. A physician said Hood was suffering from hunger and exposure and sent him to a hospital.

TELLS HOW WOMAN
SUING E. W. GROVE
GOT APARTMENTBuilding Supervisor Says
"Charles C. Long" Took
Two-Year Lease at $100 a Month.HEARD HIM CALL
HER "MRS. LONG"Witness Testifies Man Told Her He Was Secretary of Wealthy Medicine Company Head.

Depositions in the $500,000 breach of promise suit filed by Mrs. Sadie Thompson White against Edwin W. Grove, wealthy board chairman of the Paris Medicine Co., were taken at Clayton today.

Two witnesses, a neighbor and the supervisor of the apartment at 7709 Shirley drive, were heard. At that address, Mrs. White alleges, she lived for more than a year as "Mrs. C. C. Long," accepted an offer of marriage from "Long," and learned only recently that his name was Grove and that he lived at 1103 Hillside avenue, Hampton Park, with his wife and three children.

"Charles C. Long" rented the $100-a-month apartment at 7709 Shirley drive, Clayton, for occupancy Aug. 1, 1931, it was disclosed in the deposition of Miss Katabelle Husbands, 7720 Country Club court, supervisor of the Shirley drive building.

"He said he was E. W. Grove's secretary, and that he had been employed at the Paris Medicine Co. for 23 years," Miss Husbands testified. "He explained that his wife was out of town. He took a two-year lease at $100 a month. For reference, he left his business phone number, 'this was' 2-1234, and said that Mr. Long was an old employee of the firm and was trustworthy."

Witness Describes "Long."
Asked to describe "Long," she said: "Well, he was not very tall, rather fleshy. I think his hair was dark."

"Mr. Long called to see the apartments three times before he rented one," Miss Husbands continued. "Finally he arranged to take the first floor west, signed the lease and paid me $100. The rent has been paid promptly every month until this one."

"Sometimes I received the money in cash, sometimes by check, one postal note once from Colorado. Both Mr. and Mrs. Long have paid me the rent."

"Yes, I've seen them together at the apartment. The last time, I believe in July, Mrs. Long called me and asked me to come over. While I was there, Mr. Long came in, and she said, 'Never mind, I will take the matter up with me some other time. I shook hands with Mr. Long and asked him how he was, and he said, 'All right,' and I left."

"Once the rent was paid in cash by a messenger from the Paris Medicine Co. Mr. and Mrs. Long were out of town, and when the rent was due this man brought it out. I gave him a receipt."

"When he and Mrs. Long were in Colorado this summer, he sent me a money order for the rent. 'Remember Blue Automobile.' 'His automobiles? Oh, he had various machines, but I particularly remember a blue Cadillac. I believe it was a roadster."

"Of course I would know Mrs. Long if I saw her again. Dark hair, dark eyes, slender, a very good looking woman. She walks with a limp."

"Let's see. I first talked to her when she called me and asked if I understood there was to be a child in the apartment. I did not. I went over to see her and she introduced herself to me as Mrs. Long."

"That was the only introduction we had. Oh, if you mean did I hear him call her Mrs. Long, why yes, I have been in there when he said 'Mrs. Long will do this or that.'"

"Recently, when the rent was overdue, I mailed a request to Mr. Long at the Paris Medicine Co. and one to Glenwood Springs, Colo. The one addressed to the Paris Medicine Co. came back. I haven't heard from the other one."

After a perfunctory cross-examination of the witness by Attorney E. C. Hartman, representing Grove, who was not present at the deposition hearing, Miss Husbands' testimony was concluded and the depositions continued until Nov. 30.

200,000 YOUNG
ITINERANTS IN U. S.
SURVEY INDICATESNewton D. Baker Gives Out Estimate of Those Wandering in Search of Work.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—With a warning that "youth cannot wait for a return of better days," Newton D. Baker today made public the results of a national survey in which it was estimated, there are 200,000 children and young people, who are wandering about the country seeking a place where they can earn a living.

Baker, who is chairman of the welfare and relief mobilization of 1932, under whose auspices the data was compiled, declared the communities which are neglecting their responsibilities toward young persons and unemployed adults will pay heavily in social consequences.

"The past has shown us," Baker said, "that crime, ill health and loss of morale are expensive. We spend millions of dollars each year on police courts and prisons. Experience should have taught us by this time the value of and economy of reinforcing essential services."

The survey urged that provision be made for health, education, recreation and character building, as well as for emergency relief.

EIGHT CARS OF COAL TRAIN
DERAILED IN COUNTY TUNNELMain Line of Missouri-Pacific Blocked But Passengers Are Rerouted.

Eight cars of a Missouri-Pacific coal train were derailed today in a tunnel west of Barrett Station road in St. Louis County, when one became derailed because of a broken supporting bar on the trucks.

The accident blocked the main line which is single-tracked through the tunnel. There was no delay in passenger train service, but trains are being rerouted over the Frisco line to Pacific Mo. The track will be cleared today, officials said.

The first car to be derailed was dragged for a quarter of a mile, and at the entrance of the tunnel, struck the sides, derailling seven others. It was constructed of wood and was pulled apart, half of it being dragged into the tunnel.

3 STUDENTS FROM AMERICA
HURT IN CLASH IN VIENNARector of University Sends Apology to U. S. Minister Following Disturbance.

By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, Oct. 27.—The rector of the University of Vienna apologized to the American Minister today for a political disturbance at the university yesterday in which three American students were injured.

Gilchrist Stockton, the American Minister, demanded last night that the government take every precaution to safeguard American citizens. It was his second protest within a week, for another American student was injured last Thursday.

The rector promised to do everything he can to prevent a repetition of the disorders, announcing that the university remain closed until Nov. 3.

GOV. ROOSEVELT TAKES UP STATE RELIEF PROBLEM

Consults Legislative Leaders and Others and Decides Against Calling Special Session.

TO STAY IN ALBANY
UNTIL SATURDAY

Then He Will Motor to Groton, Mass., to Visit Two Sons at School—In Boston Monday.

By the Associated Press. ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 27.—With most of his presidential campaign behind him, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt turned his attention today to a serious state problem, the care of New York's thousands of unemployed next winter.

The Democratic presidential candidate ended an eight-day trip to the Middle-West and the South last night when he motored up the Hudson River from New York City, where he left his special train yesterday morning. He had left Albany Oct. 18.

Gov. Roosevelt and legislative leaders agreed, after a conference with unemployment relief commission representatives, that there is no need for a special session of the New York Legislature to deal with unemployment relief.

On Nov. 8 New York voters will pass on a proposed $10,000,000 bond issue to finance relief work for the next year.

The Governor will remain in Albany until Saturday when he will motor to Groton, Mass., to visit his young sons, John and Frank, in school there. Many party leaders of New England also are expected to call on him at Groton. Next Monday he will speak in Boston.

Gov. Roosevelt's return to Albany last night was almost unnoticed. Few knew when he would arrive home. He waved to the newspaper men who had followed him on all his trips, advising them "to go to bed and get some rest, as I am going to do."

He had stopped at Hyde Park on his way up from New York to dine with his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, at the old family home.

During his stay in New York yesterday, the nominee was visited by Col. E. M. House, and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, who was Alfred E. Smith's campaign manager at the Chicago convention this year.

Gov. Roosevelt was confident New Jersey would go Democratic.

THOUSANDS IN RAIN CHEER
AL SMITH AT PROVIDENCE

He Speaks Briefly in Hall After Parade Through Boston

Talk Tonight.

By the Associated Press. PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 27.—Alfred E. Smith was greeted by the cheers of thousands of Rhode Islanders, when he arrived late today on the platform of Infantry Hall to deliver a brief address in behalf of the Democratic nomination.

A crowd that filled the 4000 seats in the hall had waited since 1 p. m. for the former New York Governor and 1928 presidential candidate.

"Thousands," said the uplifted umbrellas, swished through the rain to the railroad station to greet him. Crowds had greeted him in a rear platform appearance in Connecticut. Paper streamers, confetti and cheers greeted Smith and his party in a parade through the streets to the hall. Mrs. Smith met her husband at the station and carried an armload of flowers to the platform.

"I am invading three New England states to do what I can to bring about the election of Roosevelt and Garner, as well as the Democratic state tickets in these states," Smith said.

He said it had been called to his attention that "through dissatisfaction," many people might stay away from the polls in this section.

"They can't do it," he continued, "it isn't fair to the country and it certainly isn't fair to the party."

In introducing Smith to the thronged auditorium, J. J. Conney, Democratic leader, said his "support of Gov. Roosevelt" ended the "last hope of a Republican victory in November."

While Conney talked several free-for-all rights took place on the floor.

Smith speaks in Boston tonight on taxation and what he terms Republican neglect to balance the budget.

JOBLESS MARCH INTO LONDON AS POLICE STAND BY

foot, were assigned to special duty for the occasion, demonstrating the fact that never before had Scotland Yard taken such elaborate precautions to deal with a demonstration by the jobless.

Radio vans and motorcycle squads kept headquarters in touch with the dozen or more contingents of marchers, as if the whole business were a battle maneuver.

Orders to the Marchers.

Scotland Yard ordered its men not to interfere with peaceful demonstrations. The order was to exercise forbearance and avoid clashes, but there also were instructions to the marchers not to engage in any activity that might precipitate a breach of the peace.

Precautions were taken by police to prevent any demonstrations within a mile of Parliament buildings.

The Hammersmith Borough Council refused to receive a deputation of South Wales marchers who wanted free baths for 320 persons in their group this morning.

Three Laborite members of the Council, in protest, walked out of the meeting, while the marchers walked out of Hammersmith bound for Hyde Park.

At Edmonton the marchers refused to use 50 blankets offered by the Middlesex Public Committee because they said the blankets were dirty.

Few of the hunger marchers were hungry today because local residents and organizations fed them well. At Willesden 250 Scotsmen breakfasted on tea, bread, butter, sausages and eggs. Besides each man received a large package of food to last him through the day.

The "army" numbered about 2000 as it passed through South London. Forty men from Camberwell, escorted by 60 policemen, joined the ranks as the column trudged on toward Hyde Park.

One of the few picturesque units was a delegation of Welshmen, uniformed like an army with haversacks, heavy walking sticks, red neckties and flatbreads. Bagpipers and a drum corps marched ahead of them. Before they left Hammersmith there was a preliminary mass meeting with speeches and singing of "The Red Flag" and other revolutionary songs. A hundred police stood by quietly until the march was resumed.

A drizzle and chill wind, to which the marchers have become accustomed, failed to dampen the ardor of the various columns; as they moved in from the rim of London with red flags flying, Hyde Park was ready for the expected 50,000 jobless and spectators, with 300 speaking stands set up for the day.

The marchers moved on the park from the suburban centers of Wimbledon, Deptford, Brentford, Edmonton, Stratford, Hammersmith, Tottenham, Battersea, Greenwich and Stepney.

The long distance walkers were easily distinguishable from the rather pale faced recruits who joined the ranks near London.

Many of the men in the lines were obviously weary and footsore and some carried their worldly belongings on their backs. The Daily Mail called these the "dupes of Moscow being used as pawns in Communist propaganda."

The vanguard of the army moved into London yesterday with W. A. L. Hannington at its head. Hannington was said by police to be a Communist. He was the leader of a similar march on London in 1930 and claims responsibility for the Invergoronath naval mutiny last year.

Two hundred marchers who reached the suburb of Acton last night went into the town with red flags flying to the music of a pipe band.

The various "battalions" were housed and fed last night in suburban halls, schools or workers' clubs at the expense of sympathizers. Where the army will be fed and sheltered tonight and thereafter in the heart of London was causing misgivings among the organizers and authorities alike.

Although Mrs. Buchanan was absent from her home at the time of the kidnapping, four guards and three men and a woman were in the house. The woman was in a room adjoining the nursery, but neither she nor the men heard any disturbances, they said.

At a hearing last July on Mrs. Buchanan's petition to adopt the child, it was disclosed that Miss Borman, herself a foster child, became the mother of the baby at the home of a foster sister, Mrs. Vivian Snyder. The baby was taken away and Miss Borman did not know its whereabouts until several months ago, she said, when she was asked to relinquish her rights so Mrs. Buchanan could adopt it. Instead, Miss Borman started habeas corpus proceedings to regain the child, but the court decided it should remain under guardianship of Mrs. Buchanan.

MOTHER ADMITS KIDNAPING CHILD FROM GUARDIAN

Man Who Helped Her Directs Police to Shack Where Two Are Found Sleeping.

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 27.—Miss Ruth Borman, 17-year-old mother, was found at a residence in Newhall, Los Angeles suburb, today with her 3-year-old daughter, Nancy Ruth Buchanan, who was kidnapped yesterday from the home of her guardian, Mrs. Violet C. Buchanan, wealthy Los Angeles resident.

M. E. Warner, 24 years old, arrested at a San Fernando residence had told police, authorities said, that he aided Miss Borman, 17 years old, yesterday in the kidnapping.

Warner supplied police with the address of a Newhall residence where he drove Miss Borman and Nancy.

The three were taken to a San Fernando police sub-station and officers began taking statements.

When police reached the Newhall address, which proved to be a small shack on the outskirts of the town, they found the mother asleep with her daughter.

At the police station she confronted Mrs. Buchanan and with tears streaming down her face, told a story of an intense longing for her daughter, which finally drove her to carry the child away from the home of her guardian.

When police mentioned a "kidnaping," she turned on them angrily, crying out: "This is my baby, even if the courts say she belongs to Mrs. Buchanan."

Acting Capt. P. P. Rasmussen, however, placed the mother and Warner under technical arrest and said he would hold them on suspicion of kidnapping.

Rasmussen said he had found a typewriter in the home where the mother had taken the girl and would ask experts to study the type in an attempt to determine whether it corresponded to that of the machine on which were written extortion notes.

Buchanan with abduction of the child if she failed to pay $12,500.

Mrs. Buchanan was given guardianship rights after having taken the child from her home shortly after birth. Mrs. Buchanan, officers were informed, attempted to adopt the little girl, but Miss Borman opposed the proceedings, which were pending when the child was carried away.

Although Mrs. Buchanan was absent from her home at the time of the kidnapping, four guards and three men and a woman were in the house. The woman was in a room adjoining the nursery, but neither she nor the men heard any disturbances, they said.

...and a TOPCOAT

You'll never again have such an opportunity to buy fine clothes at rock bottom as you have here... now.

Materials have gone up from 10 to 25 percent, but we bought the finest of fabrics when the market was lower, and will sell our clothes at our present low price just as long as they last.

The woolsens are the choicest goods made by the country's finest mills. We tailored them ourselves in our own factory and guarantee them perfect in workmanship, in style and in fit.

Our selection is complete. Plenty of beautiful browns, medium and dark grays, a large variety of blues and other good looking shades.

We don't restrict you in any way. You can have your choice of any color, style, pattern, model or fabric... all for the same price, $18.50.

Come in. Now is the time to stock up with the finest clothes we've ever made for the lowest price in memory.

What Bank Robbers Look Like—a Closeup

SIX bandits held up the First National Bank at Ransom, Ill., Tuesday, and were captured by a posse within two hours. They had taken $2000 and carried off the president of the bank after a woman had been shot to shield them from pursuers' bullets. Front, left to right, CHARLES SMITH, ALEX. BARRENTINO, JOSEPH JESSIE and MIKE MARTINO, at whose home the gang were captured; (back), WILLIAM JACOBI, JOE RING, FRANK VILONE. Martino had no active part in the robbery.

Charles A. Kora Dies.
BUTLER, N. J., Oct. 27.—
Charles A. Kora, who for 35 years was president of the Getman Catholic Federation of the United States, died Tuesday in St. Joseph's Hospital at Paterson. He was 64 years old.

SENTENCED 30 HOURS AFTER BANK HOLDUP

Five Men Get Year to Life for $2000 Robbery at Ransom, Ill.

By the Associated Press.
OTTAWA, Ill., Oct. 27.—Five men were sentenced to prison yesterday for the robbery Tuesday of the First National Bank of Ransom, Ill.

The five, William Jacobs, 32 years old; Frank Valone, 38, and Joseph Jones, 32, all of Chicago, Ill.; Charles Smith of Chicago Heights, pleaded guilty before Circuit Judge Edgar Eldridge shortly after they were indicted by the grand jury and each was sentenced to serve from one year to life.

Three other alleged members of the gang, Frank Rino and Mr. and Mrs. Mike de Martino, were indicted as accessories but were not sentenced.

Sentences were imposed less than 30 hours after seven men raided the bank, scooped up $2000, and sped out of town in an automobile, holding Leo H. Gondolf, the bank president, and Miss Elma Thompson, a bookkeeper, as hostages.
They were released a short time later near here.

As the robbers sped out of the town, they fired a shot which wounded the neck of Ervin Kakakara, a garage owner and member of the volunteer force of bank guards, but did not wound him seriously.

A posse led by Sheriff E. J. Welter two hours after the robbery discovered the robbers' automobile parked at the De Martino home here, surrounded the house, and forced its occupants to surrender without a shot being fired.

SAYS AVERAGE RECOVERY
IN BANK FAILURES IS 84 PCT.
M. E. Holderness Frances Way St.
Louis Depositories Have Withstood Depression.

St. Louis banks have endured the depression with less trouble than banks of almost any other large city. M. E. Holderness, vice-president of First National Bank and president of the Missouri Bankers' Association, said yesterday at a meeting of members of the association from this district at Hotel Statler.

"The bankers of St. Louis," he declared, "have given a splendid example of the helpfulness of organization. This has been due to the compact organization of the St. Louis Clearing House and the similar organization of outlying banks."

Nearly 30,000 banks have survived the depression, Holderness said, and 85 per cent of the cities and towns in the country have had no bank failures. The average recovery in bank failures, he added, is 84 per cent, while the average for general business is but 5 per cent.

U. S. HAS CHANCE TO GET RUSSIAN TRADE BY BARTER

Dr. Julius Klein Suggests
Plan After England Nullifies Treaty Following Ottawa Pact.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. — The possibility that barter may become an important medium of trade between this and foreign countries is seen by Dr. Julius Klein as a result of the United Kingdom's abrogation of her trade treaty with Russia.

It is a prospect, however, says the Assistant Secretary of Commerce, which depends upon whether Russo-British trade slackens materially on expiration of the six months period of grace, and whether the United States obtains a share of the business England loses.

Both London and Moscow have known since the Ottawa conference that the treaty would have to be nullified if the British kept their promise to bar products dumped in competition with Canadian goods. But Parliament is understood to have assured the Soviet Government it would do all it could to have a new treaty ready at the end of the six months' notice on the old.

1931 Trade Totals.
Dr. Klein says there is little doubt that both countries will lose some of the trade which in 1931 was worth approximately $15,000,000 to the United Kingdom and $160,000,000 to Russia, figuring the pound sterling on its gold standard basis. The actual loss will depend largely on what products are designated as "competitive" by the new treaty.

Some British interests are insisting that all Russian lumber, for instance, does not compete with Canadian because of the difference in types and grade. There is said to be a possibility that a blanket prohibition may not be placed on any commodity in which wide variations occur.

Another factor, Dr. Klein cites is Russia's need for credits, and consequently its desire to buy from a country which can absorb its agricultural products. That has made England its best customer.

Italy's Market Opportunity.
Because of the same need, the British, German and other Governments whose nationals sell to Russia have been guaranteeing them a substantial percentage of the purchase price and taking over the responsibility of collecting from the Soviet Government.

The Department of Commerce has heard of sentiment in England both for and against these guarantees, and of indications that Germany may not expand such credits past their current limits.

Some believe that leaves Italy as the most likely of potential Russian markets on the continent, and the United States as the most likely overseas, if Russo-British trade is disturbed by treaty abrogation.

From 1929 to 1931, inclusive, when Russia was making heavy foreign purchases of farm and factory equipment, imports from the United States ran from about $85,000,000 to $114,000,000 annually, and exports to this country ranged from $24,000,000 in 1929 to $13,000,000 in 1931.

Decline in Russian Trade.
There is a much different picture for the first eight months of the current year. In round numbers, the United States exported to Russia $8,500,000 of goods, and imported $6,500,000.

No small part of the decline is laid to the inability of Russia to get credits in the United States similar to those in European countries.

Since the Soviet Union is not recognized, Dr. Klein says, the United States cannot undertake extension of credits, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has refused loans to exporters with Russian connections.

There has been some discussion of a plan for private industry forming a revolving fund, to guarantee sales to Russia by discounting long term Soviet collateral. Opponents have complained that when pressed for funds to meet its obligations, Russia has dumped products on the world market.

Private Financing Considered.
Dr. Klein says, efforts may be revived to finance Russian trade privately—the United States perhaps selling steel and buying manganese.

Otherwise, he says, industry in this country may revert to barter, the oldest known method of trade, to start an exchange of goods with Russia. In such an event, he says, an exporter probably would agree to take from Russia, or from some country indebted to her, products equal in value to those sold to the Soviet Union.

They would have to be sold, primarily perhaps, to customers in this country, and unless they were non-competitive with domestic production might lead to legal dispute. Records are before the Treasury Department now in which it was alleged at a hearing that Russian manganese competes with American.

Likewise, disputes have arisen over Russian anthracite and pulpwood, and there is opposition to Russian asbestos. These items, and Russian furs, are among the two dozen leading articles for which the United States paid Russia almost $18,000,000 last year.

ADVERTISING CLUB DRAFTS 3-YEAR PLAN

Proposes More Festivals and Tours in Effort to Build Up City's Trade.

A plan of activities for the general advantage of St. Louis business is being developed by the Advertising Club. It is called a three-year plan because the club believes that time will be required to launch it completely.

Festivals lasting throughout October annually and regular, intensive trade extension tours are the principal features of the plan. The club is proposing organization of Fall Festivals Association, Inc., a non-profit, limited liability company with 100 members who would subscribe from $50 to $100 each.

The program of the association would be built up around the existing Valedictorian's parade and ball, National Dairy Show, National Hereford Show, horse show and poultry show. To these it is proposed to add an agricultural institute directed by the Department of Agriculture and the State Agricultural College; national conventions of agricultural bodies, a dairy machinery show, a St. Louis industrial exposition, food and radio show, harvest carnival, rodeo, inter-sectional football games, horse races, championship boxing and wrestling and an airplane circus and races.

It proposes to make the trade extension tours more elaborate than in the past. The idea is to "put St. Louis" sample and show rooms on wheels to visit the principal cities of the trade territory. A long train of baggage cars would be fitted out for exhibition of this city's goods. Another train Pullmans would carry sales representatives. The trains would move at night and park in cities by day. Publicity men would travel a week ahead of the trains.

Another item in the club's program is an annual dinner, patterned after those of the Gridiron Club in Washington, to poke good-natured fun at the great and the near-great of St. Louis. The first dinner will be held at Hotel Jefferson Nov. 18 when 484 men will be invited to attend at $5 a plate. It will be formal. Reporters will not be present.

Members of the club aim to make two local tours to increase their community knowledge. One, by train, will be around the terminal districts; the other, by automobile, to points of historic interest. The club is considering the desirability of having business organizations assist character-building agencies which are dropped from the general public solicitation of funds. It also has appointed a committee to co-operate with advertising clubs elsewhere and to obtain the 1934 convention of the American Federation of Advertising Clubs for St. Louis.

SCHOLARSHIP OFFERED STUDENT
100 PCT. MORAL AND CHEERFUL
$50,000 Fund at Illinois U. Set Aside in Will of Chicago Man.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The University of Illinois has a scholarship for one student who, with other qualifications, is 100 per cent moral and 100 per cent cheerful. Such a person is desired to participate in a $50,000 scholarship fund provided for in the will of Wensel Morava, consulting engineer and university alumnus who died recently, leaving a $500,000 estate.

The will was filed for probate here yesterday. Other qualifications for the scholarship student by its terms are that he (preference is to be given to masculine applicants) be a Czech-Slovakian, whose health is 85 to 90 per cent perfect, physique 95 to 100 per cent, and self-application is 95 to 100 per cent.

The $50,000 fund is to be used by the University, the will provides, as "Big Brother" or "Dad" fund for one qualifying student each year.

Another bequest was $1000 to Joseph Morava, Chicago, to represent interest and principal on a $15 loan his father made to the testator in 1878 for railroad fare to Wensel Morava's first job.

OLD AGE SECURITY COMMITTEE SEEKS FUNDS FOR CAMPAIGN

Missouri Group Requests "Modest Contributions" for Effort for Amendment No. 1.

A request for "modest contributions" to support the Missouri Committee for Old Age Security was made by Dr. Arthur B. Beckwith, Public Librarian and head of the committee.

Most of the support so far, he said, has come from the National Committee, which has obtained old age allowance laws in 17 other states and backs Amendment No. 1 to the Missouri Constitution, to be submitted to voters Nov. 5. Oscar Leonard, in charge of the office at 1575 Arcade building, donated by a local social agency, said inquiries received there indicated the entire state could be effectively covered with a comparatively small fund, in view of the availability of many volunteers.

Dr. Wilson of Maryland U. Dies.
By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27.—Dr. Gordon Wilson, professor of medicine and a member of the Medical Council of the University of Maryland Medical School, died suddenly yesterday. Dr. Wilson was found prostrate in his office by a physician from an adjoining office. Taken to a hospital, Dr. Wilson died shortly afterwards. Death was due to a heart attack.

3 MEXICAN KIDNAPERS KILLED, MAN RESCUED

Police Wound and Capture
Three Others in Frustrating Plot at Guadalajara.

By the Associated Press. Mexico, Oct. 27.—Three men were killed and three wounded yesterday when their kidnaping plot failed. Three others escaped.

The kidnapers seized Teofilo Sanchez, a merchant, and sent two emissaries back to his family with demands for $4000 ransom. When the emissaries told their story to the merchant's daughters, they screamed for the police, who arrived promptly and arrested the go-betweens.

Police got the details of the plot from their prisoners and found the kidnapers' hide-out. A fight ensued, in which three of the abductors were shot to death and three were wounded and captured. Sanchez was freed.

GREYSTONE APARTMENTS SOLD AT AUCTION FOR $250,000

The Greystone Apartments, Newstead and McPherson avenues, were sold yesterday by the first mortgage trustee to Missouri State Life Insurance Co., owner of the $450,000 mortgage.

The sale was conducted on the Civil Court steps by J. G. Driscoll, assistant secretary of the insurance company, and the bid, $250,000, was offered by F. X. Schlusser, attorney for the company.

The building, a 14-story structure containing 40 apartments was a promotion of the Cytron Mortgages Co., which failed three years ago. Second mortgage bond holders bought the equity for $1 at a receiver's sale several months ago, but their interests are wiped out by yesterday's action.

SAYS SOCIALISTS OFFER UNEMPLOYMENT CURE

Norman Thomas Declares Only Way Is to Wipe Out Capitalist System.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, started out yesterday on two days of campaigning in the Philadelphia area. He spoke in the afternoon to Negro students at Lincoln University in Southern Pennsylvania, in Camden, N. J., early last night and later to textile workers in the Kensington district of Philadelphia.

In his address in Camden, Thomas said that "neither of the two conservative parties has a cure for unemployment." A cure, he said, is "impossible under capitalism. Capitalism has always used the ranks of unemployed to terrorize workers. The Socialist party has a cure for unemployment; it is, briefly, the wiping out of the capitalist system."

"What the Republican orators like to call the ship of state," said Thomas, "wallows rudely in stormy seas; its crew is faint for lack of food while its officers wrangle over the questions: When and how shall we drink, who is most to blame for the storm and who made the most mistakes in 1928. This is a fair picture of America. It is a country where only the Socialists talk real issues. How shall we get food, clothes and shelter?"

"The repeal of unemployment is only possible under Socialism and international socialism at that," he said.

Talking to the textile workers, Thomas said, "Let no one think that we shall do better by running to the donkey for protection against the elephant. Gov. Roosevelt has not declared himself against the sales tax, despite repeated Socialist challenges to state his position. It is one of the lengthening list of subjects about which he cannot speak. Gov. Roosevelt is making a consistent campaign in one respect. He is getting the public to sign as many blank checks as possible, to be filled in by him as he and his strange crew of political associates desire. The sales tax is one of these checks which anyone who votes for either Roosevelt or Hoover will sign."

The Socialist presidential candidate told the students at Lincoln University that the one method to eliminate race prejudice is to support Socialism. "The root of race prejudice is planted deep in the soil of economic inequality," he said. "White arrogance is the product of accidental economic advantage. The establishment of economic justice and the end of a class division of society will rapidly help us recover our sanity concerning race relations."

AIMEE McPHERSON'S MOTHER OBTAINS MEXICAN DIVORCE

Suit of Mrs. Minnie Kennedy-Hudson Also Pending in Los Angeles Courts.

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Minnie Kennedy-Hudson, mother of Mrs. Aimee McPherson-Hutton, the evangelist, announced here yesterday she had obtained a divorce in Mexico from Guy Hudson.

She brought the Mexican petition "to get a speedy release" while her divorce complaint in the United States was moving more slowly in the Los Angeles courts.

"I'm not sure yet whether I should drop the suit here," she said. "That will be decided later."

Tomorrow... Friday... Nugents offers sensational NUGENT DAY bargains in every department throughout the three stores... including the Bargain Basement. Tomorrow has been set aside as COURTESY DAY, to give St. Louisans additional time in which to partake of NUGENT DAY values... values which are the greatest in years.

NUGENT DAY commemorates the memory of the men who founded this institution sixty years ago. Their ideal of making this an "institution for all the people" by providing quality merchandise at modest prices has been maintained.

This year NUGENT DAY takes on added interest... for added to the sensational savings that this day always brings... NUGENTS now add the additional economies that unquestionably come from cash buying... savings that are only possible through the elimination of expenses that come from charge accounts and other expensive operating methods.

Prices are extremely low... all merchandise was purchased before the market increased... assortments in every department are complete... extra salespeople will be on hand on Friday as well as Saturday... extra equipment is ready for prompt and rapid delivery.

Come tomorrow... and Saturday... come early... prepared for the biggest demonstration of value-giving in St. Louis.

AND REMEMBER! IF ANY OTHER STORE OFFERS THE SAME MERCHANDISE AT A PRICE LOWER THAN NUGENTS' ADVERTISED PRICE, NUGENTS WILL CUT ITS PRICE STILL LOWER.

WE WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD!

Watch for the NUGENT DAY advertising sections in Friday night's newspapers. Thousands of values await you... typical of the savings that have made NUGENT DAY, "St. Louis' Greatest One-Day Sale."

APPEAL TO PUT CHAPLIN BOYS IN MOVIES DENIED

Court Rules Father Best Qualified to Judge What Their "Exploitation" Means.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—A plea against exploitation of his children in the movies, where his own fame and fortune were founded, won Charles Chaplin another victory in his contest yesterday against the plans of Lita Gray Chaplin, the mother of his two sons. The Superior Court denied the former Mrs. Chaplin the right to make a movie contract for Charles Jr., 7 years old, and Sidney Earl, 6. She had appealed to the Court to abrogate a previous decision in favor of the actor, which inserted in their 1927 divorce decree a clause that both parents must consent before the boys could be employed in motion pictures.

"I want the children to lead normal, happy lives; I don't want them to be exploited," Chaplin testified. The mother said she wished to erase from the public mind an impression that she was crude, uneducated and imprudent. "I want the world to see my children," she said. "I want the world to see what I have done with them. I believe they have talent; that they are clever. They shouldn't play all the time."

In giving a decision, Judge Charles S. Crail cited the success of the comedian in pictures, against what he termed the "little success" of Mrs. Chaplin as a film player, and said he considered the actor best qualified to judge "what exploitation in pictures means."

WARNING AGAINST SOLICITORS

Authorized to Raise Money for School Lunches.

Unauthorized solicitors are endeavoring to raise money ostensibly for the benefit of some public school lunchroom, but in reality for their own purposes.

"No one," said Superintendent of Instruction Gering today, "has been authorized to solicit funds in the name of any public school in order to give lunches to public school children, or for any other purpose." The solicitation of funds was first reported as having taken place in a West End neighborhood near the Webster School, 2127 North Eleventh street, but a later report indicated that solicitations had taken place in a West End neighborhood near four public schools on South Broadway.

DIES FROM INJURIES

EDWARD J. GANTZ JR.

FUNERAL SERVICE TOMORROW

FOR EDWARD J. GANTZ JR.

Youth Injured 10 Months Ago Dies From Injury to His Spine.

The funeral of Edward J. Gantz Jr., 18 years old, who died Tuesday from a growth on the spine resulting from an injury suffered last December, when he was struck on the thigh by another youth in play, will be held tomorrow at 8 a. m. at the Church of the Nativity, 5501 Oriole avenue.

Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. Gantz, who resided at 6320 Laurel avenue, was struck on the thigh by the knee of Frank Just of 2135 St. Louis avenue at the Brown Shoe Co., where both were employed as clerks. On March 24 the leg was amputated at De Paul Hospital. Subsequently Gantz was found to be suffering from a growth on the spine, which physicians said resulted from the injury.

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday.

11 PERSONS ARE INJURED WHEN STREET CARS COLLIDE

One-Man Switch Spins Switch and Crashes Into Another on Wellston Line.

Eleven persons were injured, one seriously, in a head-on collision between two Wellston line street cars at Grand boulevard and Easton avenue at 4:40 p. m. yesterday.

The accident occurred when an eastbound one-man car, operated by James McGinnity, 1801 North Francis avenue, split a switch and crashed into a westbound car.

Mrs. Beulah Earl, a Negro, 1035 North Leffingwell avenue, suffered fractured ribs and an injury to the back. She is in city hospital No. 2.

Other passengers injured were: Miss Zella Selgried and her sister, Miss Cecelia, both of 6245 Northland avenue; Mrs. Estella Bruer, 2100 Wabasha avenue, and six Negroes, all of whom were cut by flying glass, or bruised. Alfred Treumkman, 4620 Lexington avenue, motorman of the westbound car, was cut on the hands and arms by glass. McGinnity was not hurt.

DEMOCRATS POINT "ROAD TO RUIN,"

OGDEN MILLS SAYS

promptly; industry would collapse and employment be lost.

Remarking that inflation "is a calamity to all," Mills continued:

"As sure as the sun will rise tomorrow, some such program will make its appearance in the next Congress, should it be called together in March. The danger to the country is altogether too great not to take this proposal seriously. If the Democratic candidate for the vice-presidency doesn't believe in it, then he ought to repudiate it tomorrow. If the Democratic candidate for the presidency doesn't approve of this measure, then he owes it to the country to say so."

Gov. Roosevelt, Mills said, quoting from various campaign speeches by the Democratic candidate, had failed in a majority of instances to give "any faint indication" how his promises were to be carried into action.

"Of what value are glittering promises without disclosure of the means whereby they are to be made good?" he asked. "They are of as much value as a promise to pay, payable at a bank where the drawer is unknown, and where he has not, never has had, and never will have funds with which to meet the obligation."

"The various steps taken under the President's leadership were not a series of independent and unrelated actions, but constituted a unified and integrated program designed to meet the various phases of a progressive economic disease that had been accurately diagnosed and which, if it had been permitted to run its course, might have resulted in terrible disaster," he added.

"We have faced fearful difficulties, we have sustained terrible shocks, but under wise and resourceful leadership our resources have been so mobilized as to bring us through safely, though with much suffering and damage."

MISSOURIAN GIVEN ENGINEERING MEDAL

DANIEL COWAN JACKSON, RECIPIENT of the John Fritz gold medal in engineering for 1932. The basis of the award was his work in extracting copper on a large scale from ore containing as little as two per cent of the metal. Jackson, born near Appleton City, Mo., and a graduate of the Ball School of Mines, follows his profession in San Francisco.

NEW INQUIRY ORDERED IN REPORTED DROWNING

For Third Time, Police Take Up Case of George Mallonee, 11, Missing 30 Months.

A third investigation of the disappearance of George Mallonee 11 years old, who was last seen alive 30 months ago on a section of Mississippi River piling at the foot of Chippewa street, where a few minutes later five witnesses saw a small boy drown, was ordered by Chief of Police Gerk today.

The investigation was reopened at the instance of a newspaper reporter who presented a memorandum from a lawyer stating the lawyer understood George's brother or father had heard that one of the five witnesses had said of George, "Oh, he'll come back," indicating that he was not drowned.

Chief Gerk assigned Detective Sergeant James Tester to look into the findings of the Wyoming Street Station police, the then captain of the district, Robert Agee, and a group of officers under Detective Lieutenant John P. Coakley.

The father of the boy, Joseph Mallonee, 2614A Pestalozzi street, complained to the Circuit Attorney in September, 1931, that he was not convinced his son had drowned since the body had not been recovered. At that time, the Coakley investigation was ordered and a detective reported to the Chief that they had discovered the following:

George went fishing with three friends of about his age on the fifth of May, 1930. They left him sitting on the piling watching the fishing poles. "Three older boys came along and stood on the piling, too. The older boys, all of whom the police interviewed, heard a splash, and looking around, saw a boy in the river. They could not say it was George Mallonee because they were not acquainted with George."

They tried to reach the boy with fishing poles, but sinking and rising, he drifted out into the current of the river, went down and did not resurface. Two of the companions returned, they told the officers, in time to see the fluttering hands of a boy above the surface. However, they did not see his face, they said, as his head did not appear above the water while they were looking.

Of the larger boys, 19 and 20 years of age, the report on the Coakley and his side concluded: "They are all positive the boy was drowned, as they saw him sink from the surface and never come back."

A professional diver, Jack Pielmann, spent four hours searching for the body in the brush-filled cove near the piling.

TWO U. S. SOLDIERS TRAPPED TRYING TO SELL ARMY PAPERS

Officer Poses as Foreign Agent, Gets Documents for $100 in Marked Money at Honolulu.

HONOLULU, Oct. 27.—Two enlisted men were under arrest at army headquarters today charged by department officials with stealing confidential documents and attempting to sell them to an agent whom they believed to be a foreign Power representative. A United States army officer was the "gent" Men, whose names were withheld, in a cottage on Waikiki Beach in which they were arrested by military and Honolulu police Tuesday night.

At army headquarters it was announced the enlisted men worked in the document rooms and were suspected when official papers, including maps, disappeared. The officer was assigned to contact them, representing himself as the agent of a foreign Power. Army officials said the two men turned over the papers for $100 in marked currency. The arrests followed.

Expected to Reverse Hoover
Plurality of 1928.11 COUNTIES OF 13TH DISTRICT INCLUDEDOnly Two Counties Went for Smith Four Years Ago—Roosevelt Plurality of 8000 Expected.By CURTIS A. BETTS, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.PERRYVILLE, Mo., Oct. 27.—
Unemployment in the Southwest Missouri lead belt and the bottom prices for farm products seem like to reverse the 8400 Hoover plurality of 1928 in the Thirteenth Congressional District this year and as a result in a Roosevelt plurality of the same figure.On the opinion of local political leaders of both parties, Roosevelt probably will carry all of the 11 counties of the district with the possible exception of Perry. In only one county does it appear probable that the Democratic plurality or 8000 might be reduced. That is St. Genevieve.Former Majority Reversed.
Hoover carried the district four years ago by 8399, only two counties, Reynolds and St. Genevieve, went to Smith. A synopsis of the unemployment and low prices of the district leads to the conclusion that a Roosevelt plurality in excess of 8000 may be expected this year.
George carried the district in 1924.St. Francois County, which normally is close, shows a particularly drift toward Roosevelt. Prosperity in the mining industry and a heavy Republican victory four years ago have carried the county by Hoover 5000. It is estimated that Roosevelt will have a lead of at least 1000 there this year.In St. Genevieve active Democrats were somewhat doubtful that Roosevelt would prove as popular a candidate as did Smith.
The local Hoover vote of 1448, though they do not look for a much decreased Democratic plurality this year, St. Genevieve has been and is a very wet county. The percentage of Catholics in the population is large. These two factors counted in 1928, but amount to less in this campaign.Reports indicate that in nearly all of the counties there has been some decrease in the anti-Hoover sentiment during the past week or two, but not to an extent indicating any material change.Local Leaders Estimate Results.
Local political leaders, who make their business to study conditions, expressed views of the probable election result in each county. Based on present conditions, which of course campaign developments might in some degree alter, these opinions were that the election returns probably would be approximately as follows:—Bollinger County, Hoover 2350, Roosevelt 2650; Carter, Hoover
100, Roosevelt 1250; Iron, Hoover
100, Roosevelt 1250; Jefferson, Hoover 1500, Roosevelt 1600; Madison, Hoover 1600, Roosevelt 1900;
Perry, Hoover 2600, Roosevelt
2700; Reynolds, Hoover 700, Roosevelt 2100; St. Francois, Hoover 2250, Roosevelt 7750; St.
Genevieve, Hoover 1200, Roosevelt 1400; Washington, Hoover 2450, Roosevelt 2750; Wayne, Hoover
1900, Roosevelt 2500.LIVES UP $959,070 HOLDINGS

Liability Claim.TULSA, Ok., Oct. 27.—Stripping himself and his wife of the bulk of their oil fortune, Frank J. Greer, former operator of the Petroleum Royalties Co., today turned over properties valued at $959,070 to disgruntled stockholders of the company. The sum was fixed as Greer's liability to the concern, which has been in litigation during the past year, and sale of which was protested against in Federal Court by 147 stockholders. The sale was made to J. Edward Jones,
New York royalties operator.The trust company was taken from the control to Greer, his wife and bookkeeper and placed in resulting a year ago.Greer retains title to a $65,000 home and miscellaneous stock of undetermined value. Mrs. Greer retains a score of royalty holdings of undetermined value. The couple retained 112 royalty holdings and a number of stock shares.Attempted disposition of the trust company holdings to Jones was blocked irregularly by the Federal Court, thus stripping him of all control with the concern he owns.

SUPPLY OF TAX DELINQUENTSCity Council Votes to Deny Municipal Services to Those Who Refuse to Pay.By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The City Council today took drastic action calculated to break the tax strike by denying to large delinquent taxpayers municipal services, including water.The council adopted unanimously a resolution prepared by the corporation counsel calling on the City Water Department to cut off within 10 days the water supply of any person or organization which owes $10,000 or more back taxes and is able to pay.The resolution also authorized the Mayor to revoke at his discretion any special privileges, such as canopies, reserved parking spaces, electric signs over sidewalks, and the use of public property upon, over, or under sidewalks and streets now enjoyed by such tax delinquents.The resolution was aimed at large taxpayers, said its sponsor, Alderman John S. Clark, because 60 per cent of the unpaid $200,000-taxes for 1928, 1929 and 1930 owed by persons paying more than $10,000 a year.The resolution provides that when a delinquent can prove he is desirous to pay but unable to do so, he shall not be denied municipal services or reasonable privileges. It also urges that pending tax cases in the courts be adjudicated as quickly as possible so that judgments against the delinquents may be obtained and collected.TAFT LETTER URGES WEALTHY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 27.—
A hitherto unpublished letter from the late William Howard Taft to Prof. Milton Conover of Yale urged the entrance of wealthy young men into politics was made public yesterday."My idea is that in graduating a number of young men who are able to live without earning a living," wrote Taft in June, 1928,
"we have a lot of useful material of which to make professional politicians who will be well prepared for such a part.""By attendance at caucuses, at council meetings, at school boards and at all meetings in which public business is done, they can inform themselves and keep up with current business and challenge what it is proposed to do.""The small things naturally come and should do so and it will all arrange itself if they don't think that they must begin as Senators or Cabinet officers or Congressmen.""They can't be statement all at once—they would not make good ones—but with an absence of selfish aim and a determination to help, they will soon find where they can do so."ILLINOIS OBTAINS $6,303,150

HOOVER HELPED TO END GERMAN PANICAmbassador in St. Louis Praises Moratorium and Reparations Action of President.The Hoover moratorium and the reparations cancellation ended the panic in Germany, but the economic crisis is still to be faced, Frederic M. Sackett, American Ambassador to Germany, said upon his arrival here today.Ambassador Sackett was a luncheon guest of the Steuben Society at Hotel Jefferson and is to speak at a Republican mass meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in Tower Grove Turner Hall, Junata street and South Grand boulevard.Leaving Berlin four weeks ago today, he stopped at Geneva for some preliminary work on next winter's economic and financial conference, had dinner there on a Monday evening and six days later had Sunday dinner in Washington.Since then he has been speaking to groups of German decent on the situation in Germany and the effect of the moratorium and reparations cancellation. He has gone back to the days immediately after the armistice to relate that President Hoover broke the allied blockade and ended famine in Germany, and organized, financed and led the American Relief Association, which fed 8,000,000 Germans.His interest in the campaign, he told reporters today at Hotel Jefferson, is in the assistance this administration has afforded Germany toward a way out of the crisis. With the crisis still on, he remarked, "I want to see the same conditions of intelligent helpfulness continued."Prospect of Recovery.
The prospects of recovery in Germany hang on the outcome of the world economic conference, he said, and explained: "Germany is a great exporting nation. Its recovery depends on the recovery of world business. The world depression has hit it very hard.""It has been hurt by the wiping out of its markets, lapses from the gold standard, the transfer of funds—particularly the transfers and by the prohibitions of various countries against goods coming in from the outside.""By prohibitions," he said, he meant arbitrary limitations on exports, "quotas" set for imports, and not tariffs. The quotas, he explained, were new, "while we always got along with tariffs."The sense of financial stringency, unnoticed by visitors in Berlin, was ever-present to its residents, he said. "When I went to Berlin three years ago," he related, "it was to find a night off from the social round, but the entertaining now is confined to the diplomatic corps.
The German people simply cannot afford it.""Their One Great Friend." He believed there was "definite progress" toward tolerance between France and Germany—a real key to the German situation—and he characterized the friendship of official Germany toward the United States, and of the German people for Americans, as "remarkable.""I feel seem to feel," he said, "that the United States is their one great friend. The relations between the two countries are ideal."TARIFF PREVENTS CANADIANS

Manitoba farmers of this district, who lost their crops through drought and the grasshopper plague, say they will be forced to go on relief this winter because they have no money to pay the duty on North Dakota potatoes which the farmers below the line have offered "for the digging."Institution of a special arrangement by which the residents of the district might be exempted from payment of the 45-cent-a-bushel tariff is urged by J. L. Brown, member of the Federal House of Legislature.In reply to the request, the Minister of National Revenue, E. B.
Byckman, wrote: "I dare say you have in mind the action which was taken some years ago in connection with the importation of hay. I do not feel this is a proper remedy for the unfortunate condition in which the residents of this place find themselves. It practically means the establishment of a seasonal tariff, which is unsound in principle."Improve Your Chances for the campaign has not disrupted the clock-like regularity of the seasons

Cabinet.Ever since March 6, 1929, rain, shine, snow or sleet, except on Sundays, the President has followed each night's sleep in the White House with a brisk morning medicine ball game. He's even played on Christmas, and New Year's day.Remarkable that the President, and a majority of his fellow players, are in the 50-to-60 year age group. Dr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, today drew the following medical conclusion from his three-and-a-half years' observation:"I consider the President's medicine ball Cabinet definite proof that he is energetic and indeed, all the body musculature is well developed to meet consistently heavy physical demands even after the age of 50—if it is done with proper guidance and supervision."Where the President used to be termed "over-weight," visitors now say "what a trim man!" He has a quicker step, a deeper voice. His motions are very rapid, but well-measured. He has a fine muscular co-ordination system."EX-QUEEN MAKES DEMANDS

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—In a letter addressed to Chicago newspaper publishers, Elias H. Strawn, former president of the American Bar Association, says he was "amazed" at Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's Baltimore statement last night that "after March 4, 1930, the Republican party was in complete control of all branches of the Government.
And, I might add for good measure, the Supreme Court as well.""I am amazed that any reputable member of the bar, who, in order to obtain his license to practice, swears that he will uphold the Constitution and laws of the land, should make that statement, which strikes at the very foundation of our Government," Strawn's letter said."All lawyers and every layman who has even a superficial knowledge of the facts knows that there never has been and never can be any politics in our Supreme Court, and that no political party could control the actions of the court.""I submit that such a charge will be resented by everyone who believes that the stability of our Government depends upon maintaining the respect and regard of our people for the dignity of the Supreme Court."Strawn is listed at Republican

"by Eliminating Errors" in Polls—Estimates Democratic Victory in Missouri by 441,000.By RAYMOND P. BRANDT, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—If President Hoover is re-elected or if Gov. Roosevelt wins the Presidency by only a small majority, the straw vote system of forecasting election results will receive a setback from which it will not recover for a long time.This is the conclusion of Claude E. Robinson of Columbia University, author of the book, "Straw Votes," published by the Columbia University Council on Research in the Social Sciences. Robinson has made a special study of the pre-election forecasts of 1928 and 1932 and the outstanding student in this country on the subject.Robinson's analysis of the Literary Digest and the Hearst polls brings him to the conclusion that the forecasts of 1928 and 1932 plurality of 7,826,000 over the Hoover-Curtis ticket. He believes that this is a conservative estimate.Other predictions based on similar data give the Democrats an advantage as high as 10,000,000 votes.Only Four Hoover States.
Hoover, according to Robinson's calculations, will carry only four states, and these by a small margin. They are Maine, with a Republican plurality of 26,000; Vermont, 4,000; New Hampshire, 11-000 and Delaware, 2,000. His computations allow such rockrib-bed Republican states as Pennsylvania, Iowa and Kansas to the Democrats with almost unbelieveable pluralities.The Democratic plurality in Missouri, as determined by his methods, will be 441,000; in Illinois, 845,000; in New York, 745,000, and in Pennsylvania, 705,000.Robinson has worked out his own corrections for the Literary Digest and the Hearst polls. In the past, he says, these polls, despite the claims of their sponsors, have shown rather great errors in the forecast of pluralities in individual states, although they have had only a comparatively small percentage of error in the electoral vote.Both polls, Robinson explained to the writer, consistently overpre-dicted Hoover's plurality in 1928.
Robinson claims that his system, which is based on the shift of voters from one party to the other between elections, corrects much of this error.Real Test of Accuracy.
"The accuracy of a straw vote is determined," he said, "by how close it approximates the actual voting and not whether it successfully predicts that a state will go Democratic or Republican. For instance, if Mr. Hoover received 51 per cent of the votes in the actual election, the poll that predicted he would receive 49 per cent of the votes was more accurate than one that forecast 60 per cent, although the latter poll forecast that he would carry the state.""The Digest and the Hearst polls, perhaps because the mailing lists are taken from the same sources—the Digest from telephone directories and automobile registrations, and the Hearst from telephone directories alone—have given the Republicans an advantage, especially in New England.
An analysis of the 1928 polls has disclosed that a more accurate prediction could have been made if more attention had been paid to the shift of voters."In explaining how his methods worked in the instance of Missouri, as based on the Oct. 22 Digest poll, Robinson said that his calculations for the State were very close to the percentages obtained by merely using the simple voice for Hoover and Roosevelt. This was not true in other states, where the differences in some cases were as great as 20 per cent.Here is how the predicted Democratic majority in Missouri is determined by Robinson's methods:
The Digest reported that of the 57,339 straw ballots cast for Roosevelt, 18,175 had the notation that the same voters had voted the Republican ticket in 1928. Of the 31,164 straw ballots cast for Hoover, 22,287 carried the notation that they had voted for the same candidate in the 1928 election.
Thus, here was a total of 44,462 changes—18,175 plus 26,287—who had voted the Republican ticket in 1928. Of this number, Roosevelt, in the 1928 straw poll, received 40.8 per cent.These same ballots disclosed that Roosevelt had received 23,966 votes from persons who actually voted for Smith in 1928. Hoover received only 1800 Smith votes. Thus out of a total of 14,706 Democratic votes in 1928, Roosevelt received

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—A navy built to the London treaty limit and "equal to that of the most powerful in the world" is considered by President Hoover a necessity if arms limitation efforts fail.The President's view was expressed in a formal statement commencing the eleventh annual observance today of Navy day.
This year, on the bicentennial anniversary of his birth, George Washington's relation to the Navy was made the theme of the nationwide celebration led by the Chief Executive and Secretary Adams.President Hoover's statement follows:"I take the occasion of Navy day to remind the nation that the national defense is the first and most solemn obligation placed upon the Federal Government by the Constitution. Our people have ever been lovers of peace and they have consistently pursued a policy designed to preserve national rights by peaceful negotiation wherever possible, rather than resort to arms.""This administration has spared no reasonable effort to bring about an agreement of all nations upon a reduction of arms, upon the ratios agreed upon at the London naval conference. Our patience in these negotiations has never for a moment jeopardized the safety of the United States. These efforts are making progress. If these efforts finally fail, we shall be compelled, by reason of the disturbed condition prevailing throughout the world and the necessity of protecting American commerce, to build our Navy to the full strength provided in the London agreement, equal to that of the most powerful expenditures that would be involved by such necessity, or the blow that it would deal to one of the most cherished aspirations of our people."SCHROETER BROS.

COMPARE the Normans—Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President of the United States. On the very day when Montagu Norman confesses that he approaches the subject of the economic depression in ignorance and humility, Norman Thomas proposes courageous and intelligent suggestions to remedy the disgraceful existing conditions and restore hope. If there were any unity to capitalism, the governor of the Bank of England might well be considered the kingly. But, as he says, nations will not or cannot act together under capitalism, nor can individuals or corporations. Perhaps it is a hopeful sign, this admission of futility by a representative capitalist. When we realize that capitalism can no longer be patched and that when we change it sufficiently to make it work, it will no longer be capitalism, we will be ready to go forward.

The fateful prophecies of far-seeing Socialists can no longer be pooh-poohed. Their vision owes nothing to necromancy, but proceeds from understanding and honesty which the Wizards of the Depression would do well to strive for, while, like Micawber, they wait for something to turn up. PLEEE.

We Are Chilled.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial of last Saturday, "Gov. Roosevelt in St. Louis," was inexcusable. There was no necessity for you to make slighting innuendoes about the Democratic nominee.

If you can't support him honestly at this late stage in the game—not having any valid reasons for not supporting him—keep your mouth shut.

Mr. Winter and Machine Rule.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

TO those of us who have lived in Warren County during the years 1910-20, Mr. Winter's indignation at what he calls boss and machine rule sounds rather funny.

From 1910 to 1920, we had a machine in Warren County, operated and owned by T. W. Hukriede, the present United States Marshal in St. Louis, who put courthouse rings as ever existed in the State of Missouri. During all those years Mr. Winter, now the Republican candidate for Governor, was editor and, I believe, also the publisher of the Warren Banner, published in the county seat of Warren County. We never heard one peep from Mr. Winter condemning boss or machine rule, or even hinting to believe that Mr. Winter is more opposed to the label on the so-called machine at Kansas City than he is to the machine itself. I do truly believe that, if the so-called Kansas City machine bore the Republican label, Mr. Winter would think it a highly desirable and patriotic organization. CHARLES STUEVE, Jonesburg, Mo.

Drys Are for Hoover.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WITH few exceptions, leaders of the drys are outspoken in urging support of the Republican national ticket. "The eighteenth amendment will be safe in the hands of President Hoover," one such widely known leader assured the Methodist conference, in session two weeks ago in Rochester, N. Y. Another has prophesied, "If Franklin Roosevelt is elected President, the eighteenth amendment is doomed." I am sure that Mr. Hoover shown himself as favoring even the slightest liberalizing of the Volstead Act by amendment within the present power of Congress to make. The 1/2 of 1 per cent definition in the act has always been "safe in his hands." The evils of Volsteadism have been very largely the result of that notoriously untrue definition.

Substitute 3 per cent for 1/2 of 1 per cent as a definition of intoxicant, and fully half the demand for unlawful high-power distilleries will be cut off. Such a change in law can be brought about instantly by a majority of Congress and a President willing to sign such an act.

And only the election of Roosevelt can assure the leadership in the White House to bring such a change to pass—unless the dry leaders and their followers have been sadly misled.

Our Attitude Toward Judge Park.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorials concerning Judge Park are an affront to the intelligence of Missouri Democrats.

We all know why St. Louis has suddenly gone "pure." It is merely a matter of jealousy. If Pendegast lived in St. Louis, he would be a "noble and marvelous leader."

Outstate Democrats, being quite intelligent enough to arrive at our own decisions, are 100 per cent for Judge Park. He stands for the reforms which we are determined to have. And we would be for him even if he had the Indorsement of the "holier-than-thou" Post-Dispatch.

MR. HOOVER AND THE ECONOMISTS.

It is unquestionably annoying to Republican leaders who are engaged in preaching the orthodox gospel of high protection up and down the country to have their position emphatically attacked by a formidable group of experts in economic science. This annoyance is clearly evidenced by a press release from the Republican National Committee denouncing the 190 economists who recently petitioned President Hoover to move toward the reduction of the Hawley-Smoot rates. The committee has discovered that the petition was initiated by "Socialists" and "Communists" and "radicals," and that it was circulated by Prof. James C. Bonbright of Columbia University, who actually favors the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt to the presidency.

It stigmatizes the signers as "so-called" economists, charges that they have been deluged by the conspirators who drafted the petition and hints that the rest of the 1938 "so-called economists" who protested the enactment of the Grundy law in 1930 have by now seen the error of their ways.

More serious, however, is the reaction of President Hoover, who, when the economists implored him in 1930 to veto the Hawley-Smoot bill, signed it and justified his action by the plea that his iniquitous rates would be reduced by the Tariff Commission. The second petition pointed out that few significant reductions had been made and requested him to initiate the action which he had promised two years ago. His response was to order the Tariff Commission to investigate the duties on 16 specific commodities, with a view to their further elevation. Like a man who attempts to gain his point in an argument by reiterating his position in louder and louder tones, he pushed even further the policy which expert opinion had unanimously condemned as economically unsound.

The President argued in support of his order that the restoration of employment is threatened by a flood of imports made possible by the depreciation of foreign currencies. The flood of imports which he bewails has as yet made no impression on the official statistics of international trade. Our imports in the first six months of 1932, before the passage of the Grundy tariff, were valued at $1,736,000,000. For the corresponding period in the present year they stood at $326,000,000, a decline of over 50 per cent.

The threat of foreign currency depreciation is equally erroneous. During the last two years, wholesale prices have fallen 21 per cent in France and Holland, 20 per cent in Germany and Italy, 17 1/2 per cent in England, 16 per cent in Japan and 11 per cent in Canada. But during the same period, they have dropped 23 1/2 per cent in the United States. The standard of living has fallen more here than it has abroad. The spread in costs is less now than it was in 1930. The Grundy rates, which were not needed in 1930, are needed even less today.

This order, issued as it was in response to hostile criticism in the heat of the national campaign, completely destroys the President's former pretense that the Tariff Commission is an impartial, expert, fact-finding agency. By his own act, he has made it a part of the Republican publicity machinery.

It has frequently been charged that the flexibility of the tariff is like the flexibility of the elbow, bending only upward. If anyone doubted this charge, Mr. Hoover's present move should offer conclusive proof of its solidity.

The order is also violative of sound social ethics in its appeal to selfish sectional interests. In releasing it, the White House made public a list of cities where employment was to be stimulated by its supposed benefits. We doubt if history records a more brazen instance of economic intimidation.

President Hoover has frequently spoken with disapproval of the lobbying and log rolling which have characterized congressional consideration of tariff legislation. It is difficult to discover the ethical superiority of his present appeal.

AND NOW THERE ARE THREE.

Of the 26 candidates for Congress in Missouri, only three have received the accolade of the Anti-Saloon League. Is it not too bad? In the few weeks since the primary, the man with the plug hat has sorrowfully cut from the list of the anointed five Democrats who turned turtle and signed John Cochran's manifesto. Gone also is Phil Bennett, Republican candidate from Springfield, who has done something or other since the primary to warrant excommunication. So there remain three Republicans—Malone, Hopkins and Palmer. And but a few short years ago, the Anti-Saloon League held all Missouri candidates, with few exceptions, in the hollow of its hand. Thus does tempus fugit and thus do the mighty fall.

LUNCHES FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN.

The Children's Lunch Association, an organization of public-spirited women, from its beginning 18 years ago has viewed as an experiment its work of providing lunches for grammar school children. It undertook to show that appetizing, nourishing meals could be served to these children at a low cost and on a self-sustaining basis. The demonstration has succeeded doubly—in providing such lunches for thousands of children, and in convincing the Board of Education that the plan was practicable. The board at its last meeting wrote final to the group's work by accepting the invitation to take over the service in the five remaining schools where it had not already done so. The board also received more than $1000 remaining in the association's treasury, to be used largely for serving free meals to those unable to pay.

The association's hundreds of volunteer workers and supporters have made possible this benefit to the city's school children. As the group winds up its affairs, it may rest assured that a genuine achievement is to its credit.

RUSSIA'S DEPRESSION.

Russia had boasted of being depression-proof, but now joins the other nations in grappling with an economic crisis, though of a different sort from those that harass her neighbors. Other nations are downcast at viewing factories shut down or on reduced schedule in the face of lowered consumption; Russia is disappointed because, while factories run at top speed, their increased production is only about half that set for 1933 by the five-year plan. Skilled workers are outaumber jobs in other countries; Russia has a shortage of skilled workers. Other countries have great surpluses of raw materials, while the most vigorous whip-cracking of Russia's dictators has not been sufficient to produce enough coal, steel and pig iron to meet factory demands.

In foodstuffs, too, a crisis exists. There is likely to be acute need, even starvation, among Russian peasants this winter, but it will not present the paradox of want beside plenty. The crops have fallen short and the Government's concessions to the peasants have not encouraged them to increase production. Distribution has broken down, and the farm areas have not received their share of manufactured goods. Both communism and capitalism have encountered rough going in their efforts to solve the economic riddle.

SENATOR BORAH IN A HOMERIC ROLE.

There is no more human tale in Homer than that of Achilles, who sulked in his tent when he was offended, and left the Greek army to fight without him. Things went so badly with the Greeks that they at last persuaded Achilles to lend his chariot and his armor to Patroclus, and when Hector fell upon and slew Patroclus, the chagrined Achilles rejoined the fray. It was too much for him.

Human nature is unchanging, and to liken Senator Borah to Achilles is irresistible. It is very likely that Achilles was a myth, as it is probable that in time Senator Borah will become a myth. Such men are not so real as they are symbolical. They symbolize the qualities of men, and so in the course of time all the people in Homer recur and for a brief while strut the stage of life.

Achilles bore about the same relation to the Greek army that Senator Borah bears to the Republican party. Without him, the swiftest and most skillful among them, they were a slow-footed and dull-witted lot, who could neither win a battle nor beat a fat man up a hill. So it seems to be with Senator Borah and the Republicans. He is their greatest intellectual asset, that Jove whose thunderbolts have slain their thousands and tens of thousands in debate. In 1928, Senator Borah went on the radio night after night for Mr. Hoover. It was a treat, an exhibition of political fireworks the like of which the country had not seen since giants debated the slavery issue.

This year, Senator Borah sulked and Mr. Hoover promptly went down in the Literary Digest poll. The trouble with the Idaho Senator was that he did not like the position of either party on the prohibition issue. Such dry leaders as Dr. Poling, who claims 1,500,000 votes for Mr. Hoover in the ranks of the Allied Forces for Prohibition, had no such difficulty; but the erudite Idahoan is fastidious. He wanted a straight-out wet and dry fight, the covered bridge against the pool.

If we were in any doubt of what he would do at last, we had Homer to guide us. When Patroclus was slain, Achilles resumed his place at the head of the Greek army. He slew Hector and dragged his body around the walls of Troy. So it is with Senator Borah. His Hector is Al Smith. So when Al Smith came out and belabored the drys, Senator Borah emerged from petulance, lifted the lusty shout of Homeric combat, and fell upon Al. We doubt if he will drag anybody's body about, like his great prototype, but the parallel is nevertheless fascinating. What a world it is!

INTERFERING WITH FREEDOM OF THE BALLOT.

Following the example of Henry Ford, an Ohio glass manufacturer urges his employees to vote for Herbert Hoover, saying: "Your future and the future of your company depend upon the outcome of this election." This kind of intimidation is an old story in American politics, and it has sometimes been effective, but in this campaign it is likely to have the opposite reaction. With the people determined to have a change, as all signs indicate, the effort of a few employers to stuff the Republicans down their throats for four years more arouses the fiercest kind of antagonism. It is plain interference with the freedom of the ballot and an attempt to curtail the rights of American citizenship.

THE ANNUAL SHAKEDOWN.

City employees are again being shaken down for contributions to the local Republican treasury, and the Bureau of Municipal Research properly likens the practice to the organized rackets which have invaded some types of private business. It calls attention to a provision in the City Charter forbidding the solicitation of political assessments from any person in the classified service, violation of which is punishable by fine and imprisonment.

During the administrations of Mayor Miller, this provision of the City Charter has been lightly thrust aside, or evaded by terming the assessments "voluntary contributions." That phrase, of course, is absurd. Every city employee who is tapped for campaign funds knows that he must contribute or lose his job, just as most city employees must belong to ward political clubs and pay membership dues of 1 per cent of each month's salary.

It is obvious that the constant demands made on city employees are destructive of morale and of efficiency. They are hired theoretically to serve the city single-mindedly, but they know that, under the present system, it is just as much a part of their work to give both time and money to the party. They are cogs in a political machine first, and public servants second. No private enterprise would tolerate such a condition, nor should the citizens of St. Louis.

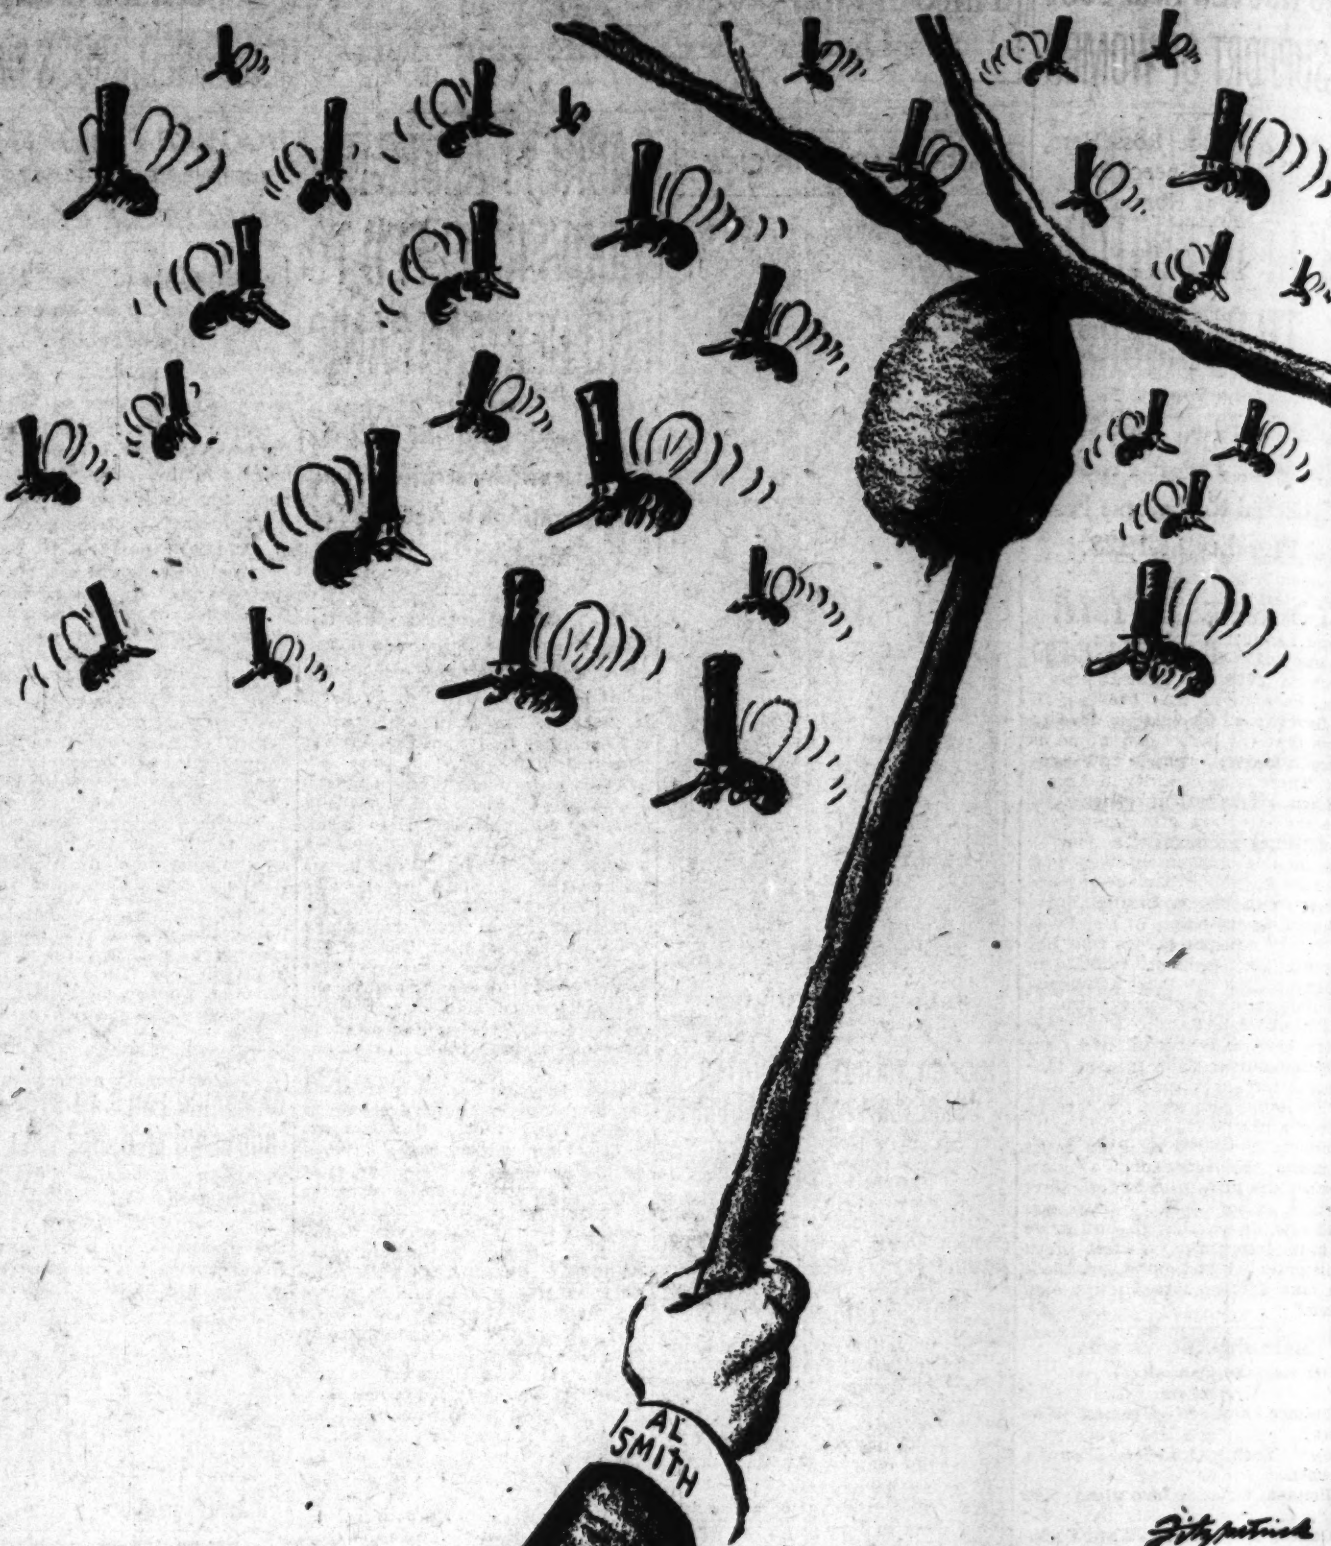

We need a new deal in municipal affairs, but we will never get it until we eliminate partisan politics from a domain of government in which it has no place. Cincinnati has shown the way, as have other cities, in looking upon municipal government as something to be conducted on a purely business basis. They have scrapped party emblems and all the rest of the political mummery and elect officials on non-partisan ballots.

BILL OF DIVORCEMENT.

Dudley Field Malone, divorce lawyer and buddy of Jimmie Walker, does not believe in half-way measures. In renouncing Gov. Roosevelt, for whom he twice campaigned, for President Hoover, the dapper Malone cut the political bonds of a lifetime. Gov. Roosevelt is highly unpopular with Walker's friends, so it is not surprising that one of them should attempt to start a mugwump movement.

But Malone's newly-acquired Republicanism does not stop at an indorsement of the President. Going down the line, Malone finds Col. Donovan, Republican candidate for Governor, to be preferred to Lieutenant-Governor Lehman, Democratic candidate, and favors George Z. Medaille, whoever he may be, to succeed Senator Wagner, whose brilliant record in the Senate has brought him nation-wide fame.

Uncle Dudley did not say so, but we presume he is also in favor of Republican county clerks, ward committeemen and dog catchers. This is no mere separate maintenance step for Malone; he has granted himself a decree of absolute divorce.

TODAY and TOMORROW

Smith and the Religious Issue

THERE must be many other loyal friends of ex-Gov. Smith who, after hearing him on the radio Monday night, feel, as I do, that the speech requires a lot of explaining. Chiefly it is necessary to account for the vehemence with which he revived the bitter memories of 1928. The speech was not a mere attack on the prohibitionists; it was a declaration of war. It was a declaration of war on the prohibitionists, and it was a declaration of war on the prohibitionists, and it was a declaration of war on the prohibitionists.

And yet, I doubt whether he would have been moved to make the speech he made if he had not been so deeply offended by the present campaign along the Atlantic seaboard. It is not Al Smith's privilege to cultivate resentment. The self-indulgence of a private person is not for him. His part is to stand fearlessly under attack and to defy it by an imperforable explanation of why he chose to let himself go to be found in his local political situation and his relation to it.

The substance of the matter is that in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey the one hope of the Republican party throughout the campaign has been in the disaffection of Smith's followers from the Democratic ticket. But for this, there would be every conceivable indication of a Democratic landslide. The Smith vote of 1928, plus the turnover of Republican votes as indicated in the Maine election and in the straw ballots, would insure an easy Democratic victory.

New the disaffection of the Smith Democrats is due, of course, to resentment at the refusal of the Chicago convention to nominate Smith and at the stupid factionalism with which Messrs. Raskob, Shouse and Smith were manhandled. Mr. Smith himself felt that resentment and has not concealed it, and while it is impossible to say that all his followers would have returned to the fold if he had accepted the result with good grace, it is clear that in displaying his resentment he encouraged the disaffection of his followers.

The Republican managers have not failed to exploit the situation, and we have had the spectacle of Senator Koss, who was a principal actor in 1928 against Smith, weeping crocodile tears this year over the way Smith was treated at Chicago. I do not know how much Al Smith would have minded this if it had simply hurt the Roosevelt-Gurner ticket, but when it threatened to hurt friends of his like Gov. Ely of Massachusetts, Col. Lehman in New Jersey, and the House candidate in New Jersey, it was plain that ordinary political loyalty demanded that he do something to persuade his followers not to injure his friends. What more effective weapon could he have chosen than to remind them that what happened at the Democratic convention was not a patch on what happened in 1928? While this explains the speech, it does not, I think, justify it. It explains, for example, what Senator Borah has apparently not understood, that the fierceness of the assault upon the prohibitionists arises out of the fact that in 1928 prohibition was used in many quarters as a mask for religious bigotry. But it does not justify Al Smith's description of all drys as hypocrites and bigots. It explains why he indulged his resentments, but it does not justify the wholesale character of his indictment of the Republican party.

Above all, the speech had the fatal defect of being itself intolerant in temper, and that raises an objection to it which transcends all ordinary political considerations. Destiny has made Al Smith the incarnate symbol of religious liberty in America. On him converge passions and loyalties of such force that if they are not wisely guarded, they will tear apart here, as they have in the past and in other lands, the bonds of the community. It is not Al Smith's privilege to cultivate resentment. The self-indulgence of a private person is not for him. His part is to stand fearlessly under attack and to defy it by an imperforable explanation of why he chose to let himself go to be found in his local political situation and his relation to it.

This is the only way in which imponderable prejudice, as distinct from privilege entrenched in institutions, can be defeated in a society of free men. The professional agitators of grievances, the persistent bidders for sympathy, invariably defeat themselves. They betray their weakness, and they invite attack. They convert their cause into a nuisance and a bore, and they do no good to anyone, least of all to themselves.

Alfred E. Smith has too many important things to do in this world to let himself be pushed into that class.

AN ENGLISH VIEW OF PROHIBITION.

From the New Statesman and Nation (London).

WHATEVER the outcome of the American presidential election, it seems to be fairly certain that prohibition in that country is doomed. It has had a long run for its money, and has built up for itself a formidable protective barrier in the "unholy alliance" of the Methodists, the "Solid South," the big industrialists, the retailers and the police. These represent the five factors necessary to prohibition's continuance: puritanism; fear of the Negro; regimentation of the wage-earner; illicit drinking—organized on a large scale; and graft with a big G. But not even this formidable array of reasons can stand longer in the way of general realization that the American experiment has failed. What form of regulation will replace it is as yet quite uncertain, and while it is easy to get rid of the Volstead Act, the amendment is a formidable obstacle. In the meantime, one hears of the activity of various business interests, which are making ready to re-start the drink trade on a gigantic scale.

Revenue From Legal Beer

By Editorial Research Reports.

THE greatest annual production of beer in the United States was $6,000,000 barrels in the fiscal year 1913-14. This amounted to about 11 gallons per capita population. With the population now about 25 per cent greater than in 1913-14, the restoration of beer might be expected to result in an annual production of about $2,000,000 barrels were it not for the sting of factors working against a production of that magnitude.

For one thing, state prohibition laws were in effect in only 14 states by the end of 1914, whereas now there are 21 states with statewide prohibition legislation of their own. (Eight states will hold referenda Nov. 3 on repealing their enforcement act.) This legislation would theoretically be unaffected if the Volstead Act were amended to permit 2.75 per cent beer, except where the state law automatically follows Federal legislation in defining intoxicating liquors. Of course, there is no telling if all the dry states would be so anxious in enforcing their laws against 2.75 per cent beer if it were permitted by Federal statute.

Secondly, pre-prohibition beer is estimated to have had 2.5 per cent alcohol content on the average. There is no telling if 2.75 per cent beer would prove as satisfactory to beer drinkers as 3.8 per cent beer, or if as large a proportion of the population would prove to be beer-drinking in 1923 as in 1914.

The statement issued March 8 by the wet minority of the House Ways and Means Committee declared that a tax of $5 a barrel on 2.75 per cent beer would bring in the Treasury "revenue conservatively estimated as amounting to $350,000,000 annually." The annual production of beer would have to be 70,000,000 barrels to meet this estimate. With 33 gallons the barrel, a tax of $5 per barrel would amount to 1 cent on each one-half pint glass, or 1 cent on a pint bottle.

The Federal tax on beer was only $1 a barrel in 1913-14, and the revenue from beer and other fermented liquors in that year amounted to $67,000,000. With the advent of the war, the tax was raised until it became $6 a barrel in the revenue act of 1918. The revenue from fermented liquors in the fiscal year 1917-18 was the highest in the history of the nation, $126,000,000. However, the spread of statewide prohibition and the war-time restrictions on the manufacture of beer reduced beer production in 1917-18 to 50,000,000 barrels.

Drys insist that any increase in revenue from legalizing and taxing 2.75 per cent beer would be more apparent than real, inasmuch as the money spent on beer would be diverted from purchases of other commodities, so that the Government's revenue from other sources would be automatically reduced.

It is estimated that before 1915, with 14 states still wet, state and local revenues from liquor taxes and licenses amounted to about $100,000,000 annually. With only 14 states now wet, it may be estimated that, at the same rate of taxes and licenses as in 1914, Federal legislation of 2.75 per cent beer might bring in about $50,000,000 annually in state and local revenues.

ESSAY ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

AYS HOOVER HAS LOST SUPPORT OF WOMEN

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross Here, Recalls 1928 Speech on Security of Home.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and former Governor of Wyoming, spoke before the Women's Democratic Educational Council at Hotel Statler today, 8:30 p. m. at the Town Club. Mrs. Ross, who is a native of Joseph, Mo., was presented at the first meeting by Mrs. Charles E. Paris, Democratic National Committee woman. Her talk was in the nature of instruction for other women speakers, for their use in addressing campaign gatherings of women.

"By a test which he himself proposed," Mrs. Ross said, "President Hoover has lost all claims to women's support. We must decide now whether the principles of free Government as set forth by Jefferson shall rule, or whether it shall drive in its destructive course until it is so discredited and unpopular that people take affairs into their own hands."

"The nation stands at the threshold of a new era. Two roads lie before it: a crucial decision must be made. We must decide now whether the principles of free Government as set forth by Jefferson shall rule, or whether it shall drive in its destructive course until it is so discredited and unpopular that people take affairs into their own hands."

SEEKS $100,000 INSURANCE OF MISSING TEXAS BANKER

Action by Wife of Sidney B. Norwood, Who Disappeared From Cleburne in 1921.

PORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 27.—Mrs. Emma Norwood of New York seeks $100,000 from the Southern Life Insurance Co. as a result of the disappearance of her husband, Sidney B. Norwood, former Cleburne (Tex.) banker, in 1921.

Contending Norwood, who was indicted following the close of the National Bank of Cleburne, is actually or legally dead. Mrs. Norwood testified in District Court yesterday in her suit to recover on a policy the company issued in 1920.

The bank closed, unable to meet the demands of depositors, soon after Norwood disappeared. Witnesses said the banker lived several years in Saltillo, Mexico, drinking heavily and wasting away physically.

Norwood's mother, Mrs. Ursula Norwood of Amarillo, Tex., was called to support the plaintiff's contention suicide was in the mind of the banker. She said the last word she had received from him was a letter in August or September of 1924, stating: "I am going out of your life forever."

The suit was brought under a Texas statute which presumes a person missing more than seven years to be dead.

STUDENT OF ELECTION POLL FIGURES DEFEAT OF HOOVER BY 7,800,000

44.3 per cent and Hoover 53.3 per cent.

The official figures for 1932 show that Hoover got 57.4 per cent of the votes in Missouri. The Digest poll indicates that Roosevelt will receive 49.3 per cent of these votes, or 22.7 per cent. Smith received 44.3 per cent of the Missouri vote. The Digest poll indicates that Roosevelt will retain 44.3 per cent of these or 43 per cent of the total Missouri vote. According to this calculation, Roosevelt's plurality will be the difference between 44.3 per cent and 35.3 per cent, or 9 per cent.

441,000 Plurality Indicated.

Assuming that Missouri will cast 1,500,216 actual votes for the two candidates as in 1928, Roosevelt's numerical plurality will be 24.4 per cent of the 1928 total or 441,000 votes.

By the same methods of calculation and based on the Literary Digest's announcement of Oct. 22, Roosevelt will get 63.6 per cent of the Illinois vote, 58.7 per cent of the New York vote and 41.4 per cent of the Pennsylvania vote.

Robinson said that the Digest poll of 1928 was a per cent in error in Hoover's favor in Missouri; 4 per cent in Illinois and 3.2 per cent in New York and only .9 per cent in Pennsylvania.

If the 1932 election bears out Robinson's methods, he will have contributed a great deal to the new science of straw vote analysis.

Using Robinson's methods on the Hearst poll of Oct. 12, the latest available showing the switch. In Iowa, Missouri plurality was computed at 218,000, instead of the 441,000 foretold by the Digest. The corrected Hearst poll indicated a 845,000 Democratic plurality in Illinois, exactly the figure given by the corrected Digest poll. The corrected Hearst poll had New York going Democratic by 599,000, whereas the uncorrected figures gave Hoover the victory by 159,000. The corrected Hearst poll put Pennsylvania in the Democratic column by a plurality of 441,000—the same as Missouri—while the uncorrected figures showed a Democratic plurality of only 118,000.

Helps Eliminate Errors.

Robinson claims that his methods do much to eliminate the error which is bound to creep into the poll based on the use of a telephone and the ownership of an automobile. Many of the mill workers of New England do not have telephones in their homes or own automobiles. Many of the unemployed are without both. He insists that the succeeding Digest and Hearst polls will bear out the percentages of the October figures.

Robinson does not confine himself to the nation-wide polls, and his office in the Physics Building on the Columbia Campus is piled high with newspapers which are conducting local surveys. For the most part, these local polls give Roosevelt decidedly more edge over Hoover than the uncorrected Digest and Hearst polls and in many instances are even well above the corrected figures.

In Philadelphia, the Record has found 70 per cent of its straw votes for Roosevelt; in Dayton, O., the News credited Roosevelt with 72 per cent. The Cincinnati Enquirer, polling the entire State, found 67 per cent of the voters interviewed supporting the Democratic presidential ticket, and the Columbus Dispatch, also covering the entire State, reported 65 per cent of their "samples" for Roosevelt and Garner. The Record, Ill., Star and Register, published by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, reported Roosevelt a 3-to-2 favorite.

Mental Attitude of Voters.

Robinson believes that the local and nation-wide polls are both subject to error. The so-called protest voters are always much more active than the complacent voters, and respond more quickly to straw-vote appeals. It has been found that where a citizen must clip a ballot from a newspaper and spend 3 cents postage, the vote for Roosevelt is overwhelming, running often as high as 10 and 20 to 1 for Hoover. He also points out that the ordinary person regards his actual vote much more as a straw vote and is likely to cast a straw vote without much consideration of the issues.

The Columbia research expert is puzzled by the opposition of many persons to straw votes. They write him from all parts of the country, protesting that publication of the results influence the November elections. The explanation usually made in the protests is that many unthinking voters want to be with the winner. Robinson points out that politicians and newspapers have been taking polls for generations, and that the politicians often try to rush the unthinking voter off his feet by claiming that their candidate will win by a huge plurality.

Robinson said that he knew of no accurate way to take a straw vote which would show the shift of voters during the last few weeks of the campaign, as is now claimed by Republican leaders. The Digest ballots were sent out during September and the Hearst ballots were mailed in weekly waves. Robinson said that there probably had been some shifting of voters during the past few weeks, but declined to estimate the number, observing that none of the polls he knew about gave any tangible evidence of a drift to Hoover. He warned, however, that many straw voters did not feel themselves bound in any way to cast their actual votes as they had answered the pre-election canvasses, and admitted that it would probably be wise to make some discount of the present predicted pluralities now projected for Gov. Roosevelt.

PROPOSED POWER DAM HERE OPPOSED AT U. S. HEARING

Objections Raised by City and Public Officials on Both Sides of the Mississippi.

General opposition of public officials and property owners in St. Louis and in St. Clair, Madison, St. Charles and St. Louis counties to the proposed power dam across the Mississippi River near the foot of Calvary avenue was expressed in a hearing at Federal Building today.

Carl G. Stifel, real estate dealer, who has applied for a preliminary permit for the dam, read a brief advocating it as a source of electric current for future industrial development nearby on the East Side. No one else spoke in favor of it.

The hearing was before Major W. A. Snow, district river engineer for the War Department. After making his own investigation of the points raised for and against the dam, Major Snow will report to the Federal Power Commission for its guidance in acting on the application.

Stifel told a Post-Dispatch reporter he "hoped to build the dam as quickly as possible and that the cost for the dam and related work might be $20,000,000 to $22,000,000." Asked how he would raise the money, he said: "That's my business." Asked if he proposed to sell securities, he replied: "I am not in the investment business." He declared this was not a promotion scheme and that he was not seeking to obtain a privilege which he could sell, but intended to operate the power plant.

Objections of the City.

A brief by City Counselor Muench asserted: "The advantages which could be conceivably derived from the dam are insignificant, compared to the injuries likely to result from its construction." He said the dam would make consummation of the City Plan Commission's northern river front improvement "practically impossible."

Among interests making written or oral protests against the dam were: Congressman Cochran, representing North Side property owners; St. Louis, St. Charles and Madison counties; cities of Alton, Roxana and East Alton; East Side Levee and Sanitary District, Canteen Creek, Chouteau, Namioki and Venice, and Chouteau Island drainage districts; St. Louis County Levee District; city Water Division; East St. Louis & Interurban Water Co.; City Plan Commission and General Council on Civic Needs, with reference to the effect on the river front scheme; St. Louis County Farm Bureau; owners of considerable land in Jersey, St. Charles and St. Louis counties; Shell Pipe Line Corporation; Canal Hunting and Fishing Club.

What Opponents Say.

Reasons given for objecting to the dam included:

Its power would be unnecessary; no showing of the applicant's financial ability has been made, and this might be a speculative promotion without intention to build; fear of widespread flooding; damage to much land, one estimate being 100,000 acres; difficulty in selling or mortgaging farm land if the preliminary permit is granted; fear that many levees would be endangered, weakened, destroyed or made useless; difficulty in continuing drainage district operations; loss of tax revenue from inundated land; effect on natural drainage and sewer outlets, increased cost and difficulty in supplying water to St. Louis and the East Side; interference with Missouri River navigation; belief that the dam might hinder rather than help flood control; possibility of much seepage in adjacent land; fear that community health might be jeopardized; increased cost of installing oil pipe lines under the river; assertion that the plans are vague and indefinite.

Stifel asserted emphatically that the river's stage would not be raised above the banks. He pointed out that the river front improvement scheme never had been adopted officially and that necessary cooperation of the Federal Government in carrying it out had not been obtained. Maj. Snow said the Federal Power Commission has no jurisdiction over land damage, which is a question for the courts. Stifel would have 30 months under a preliminary permit, in which to perfect plans.

Representatives of navigation interests will file statements later as to the effect of the dam on navigation. In the gathering of more than 200 persons were representatives of the Chain of Rocks and Lewis and Clark bridges, which might be affected.

FIRE DAMAGES 3 MACHINES

Lighted Match Tossed Into Gasoline Spilled in Street.

A truck and two passenger automobiles parked on Eleventh street, near Market, were damaged by fire yesterday afternoon when a passerby tossed a lighted match onto gasoline, which had spilled in the street as Maurice Friend, the driver, drained the fuel tank of the truck.

The flames caused $75 damage to the truck and scorched tires and paint on machines owned by Thomas Polk, 2716A Allen avenue, and Louis Schlotthauer, 3810 January avenue, damaging Polk's car $75 and the other machine $50. Firemen extinguished the flames.

The name of the man tossing the match was not learned. Friend is employed in hauling earth from the new Federal building excavation.

St. Louis Votes "Ted" Box
Most Popular Standard Oil Servisesalesman

TO "Ted" Box goes the honor of being voted the most popular Standard Oil Servisesalesman by the public he serves. Mr. Box received 647 votes from his customers, each giving him practically a 100% rating. They complimented him not only for the usual prescribed Standard Oil Service such as cleaning the windshield, filling the gas tank and radiator, checking oil and air, but made special mention of his courtesy in ascertaining the customer's requirements, of his thorough knowledge of lubrication, and of services undertaken on his own initiative, such as cleaning windows inside and out and cleaning headlight lenses.

In recognition of his service, Mr. Box has been given his choice of $100 cash or a trip with expenses paid to the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago. Our congratulations, Mr. Box.

"HOW I DID IT"

"The public will vote for the one who serves them best, and I try at all times to do just that," says "Ted" Box.
"Giving service is the only means I have of expressing my appreciation for their patronage."

STANDARD OIL COMPANY gratefully acknowledges the universally high rating given by the public to its servisesalesmen in St. Louis. Standard Oil Company is proud of its men and its products. Both are necessary to serve you!

CLASS ELECTIONS THROWN OUT AT UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI

Student Council Announces Discovery of Purported Evidence of Fraud.

The Associated Press. COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 27.—Charging that unmistakable evidence of fraud was found, the Student Council yesterday at the University of Missouri of all-school class elections today was thrown out by James Freedman, student president, and the Student Council.

Freedman and members of the Student Council contended obviously illegal ballots turned up when the counting of votes began. Included, they said, some 20 or 30 ballots written in a peculiar ink and of the same handwriting. Nearly a fourth of the votes cast were "challenged."

Candidates for class president in the all-school election were: Senior Tom Brett of Mexico and E. F. Randall of St. Louis; Junior—Kenneth L. Russell of Chilhowee and George Stuber of St. Joseph; Sophomore—Ward Edinger of Tulsa, Ok., and Ralph Eisner of Joplin, Mo.; Freshman—William Doyle of Kansas City and Charles Harper of Grain Valley.

Freedman said a second election would be held later.

WINDOW ALARM AND RADIO TRAP BURGLAR

Police Surround Building, Catch Man in Rear of 1526 Franklin Av.

A Negro burglar was captured at the M. Stone Sons Leather Co., 1526 Franklin avenue, last night, when he attempted to enter through a window and set off an alarm. Police summoned by radio surrounded the building and found the burglar in a lot in the rear.

Two iron bars on the window had been sawed and the window broken. The prisoner, who had a hacksaw blade in his hand, according to police, said he had attempted to enter to get a pair of boots which had taken his fancy yesterday when he saw them in a window. He gave his name as Andrew Stone and said he was 27 years old.

Lloyd Letchworth, attendant at a gasoline station at 3433 South Grand boulevard, was held up by three men, one of them carrying a revolver. They took $25 and escaped in an automobile.

Fifteen minutes later, August Bueneman, attendant at a station at 2647 Minnesota avenue, was robbed of $41 by two men who compelled him to lie on the floor.

Mrs. Mary Griffin, 327A North Boyle avenue, was walking in the 4200 block of Lindell boulevard early today when a Negro snatched her purse, containing 25 cents.

When Mrs. Pauline Reifschneider, 2547W University street, attempted to put her key in the kitchen door to enter yesterday afternoon, she found something in the lock on the inside. As she went to the front door to investigate a young man ran out. Entering, she found he had stolen four $2.50 gold pieces, $3 in currency, $10 worth of jewelry and a revolver. He had left a skeleton key in the kitchen door.

Guido Kaye, 3214 Montgomery street, yesterday reported the theft of two 'coon dogs, valued at $150.

He said they had been taken from the rear yard at his home, apparently by a man who had been inquiring about them in the neighborhood recently.

John Pippie, 5214 Bulwer avenue, was released yesterday on bond in connection with the investigation of the alleged theft of a truck load of coal from the reserve yard of the City Water Department, Humboldt and Conduit avenues, Tuesday. Detectives reported they saw two men on a truck take the coal and drive to Broadway and Taylor avenue before they were arrested. The men said Pippie had engaged them to haul the coal, according to police. Pippie denied any part in the transaction. At the time of his arrest, he was out on bond pending appeal of a nine-year sentence for robbery in St. Louis County.

Post-Dispatch Want Ads

Bring Them Together

To Fill Each Others Needs

One person sends a want ad to the Post-Dispatch hoping some reader—one who can fill that "want"—will read and answer his advertisement.

Another person turns to the Post-Dispatch want ad columns hoping to find advertised there that "want," which he can fill.

Multiply these separate ONES by the hundreds from day to day, by the thousands from week to week and by hundreds of thousands as months grow into years—and you can understand what Post-Dispatch want ad service means.

Used in more than a hundred ways, Post-Dispatch wants touch the lives of persons of all classes—from the laundress who appeals through situations wanted for another day's work, to the wife of the wealthy business executive who trusts the Post-Dispatch Lost and Found Columns to restore her lost diamond adornment or cherished keepsake; from the boy who finds his first position through Help Wanted, to the big business man who uses the For Rent Columns to keep his skyscraper tenanted.

Hands reach across space to fill each others needs—brought together by Post-Dispatch want ads. Are you reading or making use of these "wants"—and profiting by the service they may render you?

During the First 9 Months of 1932

The Post-Dispatch printed 445,587 separate classified "wants" and real estate advertisements, 192,570 more than appeared in the TWO other St. Louis newspapers COMBINED!

BILLIKENS AND BEARS IN LIGHT WORK FOR HEAVY GAMES

KANSAS ELEVEN WILL OUTWEIGH ST. LOUIS SEVEN POUNDS PER MAN

Kansas Eleven To Arrive Here Early Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.
LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 27. — The Jayhawkers, coached by Coach Jimmie Connelman, will arrive here early tomorrow for the game with the St. Louis Billikens at the Municipal Stadium here Friday night. The probable starters will include the four backs used today and O'Neil and Casini, center; Clawson and Mahringer, tackles; Kvaternik and Atkinson, guards; and Burcham, center.

By James M. Gould.

Chile Walsh and his St. Louis University Billikens have a "heavy date" tomorrow night. In fact, it is about their heaviest date of the football season. There can be no doubt about this for, according to official figures sent out by Kansas University, the Jayhawkers' team which is to meet the Billikens at Walsh Memorial Stadium at 8 p. m. tomorrow, has a line that averages 190, a backfield that averages 195 and a team that averages 195.

It is at present impossible to state just how great a weight-advantage the Jayhawkers have because the St. Louis U. backfield has not yet been chosen. There may be an indication, however, in the disparity in the weight of the two lines.

Kansas Line Heavy.
With the Kansas forwards averaging 190 and two of them weighing 195 each, Walsh will use McCord at center, Franklin Smith and Montgomery at the guards, Capt. O'Brien and Dick Bockbrath at the tackles and McGowan and Minkey Taylor at the ends. The line is the starting combination at the present. With Taylor, who is heavier than Minkey, this Billiken line will average 187 so there won't be so much disparity as at the forward line. But in the backfield, the Kansas-advantage will be great. Perhaps of all his combinations, Walsh would like to start Pike at quarter, McCord and LaPrete at the halves and Arenz at fullback. This probably is as heavy as any other set of backs this has. But these four would average only 185 pounds as against 195 for Kansas—a difference of 10 pounds per man. Moreover, because of injuries sustained in the Loyola game, neither LaPrete nor Arenz is likely to start and their places may be taken by lighter men, which would make the difference greater.

The 11 Billikens named above would average 184, or seven pounds per man less than the Kansas starters.

Jayhawkers Experienced.
By no stretch of the imagination could the Jayhawkers be called "inexperienced." Of the 11 starters, 10 have won letters and they don't give Ks at Kansas for proficiency in bean-bag. Only Clawson, a mere mite of 195 who plays right tackle, has not won his spurs and his letter on the Lawrence gridiron.

It wouldn't be just to say that the Billikens are down-in-the-mouth before this test. At the same time, they have little reason to be supremely nonchalant. The Billikens in New Orleans by Loyola of the South last Friday night, the St. Louis players had had exactly one day of real practice to prepare themselves for the Harvard opposition. Kansas is certain to give them a scrimmage with several of the stars kept out for fear of further injury. Today, all the work will be of "dummy" character. Commenting on the lack of practice, Coach Walsh said yesterday, "Our training is doing more work than any one on the squad."

He also stated that the makeup of his backfield would depend at the start on the condition of his men and the condition of the field. If there is no more rain, the gridiron should be firm for the game. It had drained well yesterday after the hard rains of the day before.

Lindsey New Coach.
Kansas is coached now by Ad Lindsey, formerly head football coach at the University of Oklahoma. Lindsey began the season as assistant to Bill Hargrave but succeeded Bill after the Jayhawkers were beaten by Oklahoma in the second game of the season. Kansas then rallied and won from Iowa State but, last Saturday, lost to Nebraska after out-playing the Huskers most of the way, according to Joe Maxwell, the Billikens' assistant coach and scout.

Kansas Tackle a St. Louisan

James Brazil, member of the Kansas Jayhawkers, who play St. Louis U. here tomorrow night. This is Brazil's third year on the squad. He weighs 190 pounds. He attended Cleveland High School here.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS STADIUM.
Oct. 26.—The Christian Brothers College eleven, defending champions of the Preparatory League, held the undefeated McBride eleven, favorite for the 1932 title, scoreless in the first half of their game here this afternoon before a crowd of 1100.

At the start of the second quarter, McBride advanced to the C. B. C. 17-yard line, where McCord intercepted a McBride pass. The rest of the play in the quarter was in midfield.

The C. B. C. eleven is defending its league title against the undefeated McBride eleven.

McBride was the pre-game favorite, but Coach O'Reilly spent the time reworking his lineup in order to throw his best eleven into the game. In the three contests that the Brothers have played they won one and lost two.

THE "PEPPER" MARTINS HAVE SECOND DAUGHTER

By the Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 27.—An eight-pound baby girl, their second, was born here today to Mr. and Mrs. John Leonard "Pepper" Martin. The St. Louis Cardinals' star said he would have liked a prospective big league baseball player, but that "wasn't disappointed."

Baby Martin probably will be named Virginia Lee, "Pepper" said.

Pat Murphy Wins Bout.

VINCENNI, Ind., Oct. 27.—Pat Murphy, Danville, Ill., light-weight, won a 10-round decision over Garfield Rice of Evansville, Ind., in a boxing contest here last night. Charles Gordon, Vincennes Junior lightweight, knocked out Harold Farris of Marshall, Ill., in the fifth round of the scheduled eight-round semipro fight.

Sabo on Mat Card.

Sander Sabo, who was held to a draw by Ralph Wilson last night in New York, will wrestle an opponent yet to be signed in one of the two final bouts on promoter Bill Berberich's card next Thursday night at the Coliseum.

Sabo, in his matches here, planned Pat McGill, Roland Kirshmeier, Tiny Roebuck and Alex Aberg, and wrestled to a draw with McGill.

City High School Principals Meet But No Change Is Made in System Of Football Admission Fees

The policy of the high schools in charging for admission to league football games at the Public School Stadium will remain unchanged, according to a statement made last night by Henry J. Gerling, Superintendent of Instruction, the Board of Education. The question of free admission was brought up by Henry P. Schroeder, member of the board, who last week admitted a large number of children free to the games.

The principals of the six high schools met yesterday afternoon at the board of education and discussed with John Rush Powell, assistant superintendent in charge of high schools, the advisability of admitting some students free of charge to the games, but in the absence of a resolution passed to that effect by the board, no action was taken by the principals.

Some of the evils. It was pointed out that evils would result from any system different from the one now in use, because some of the students who received passes to the game would sell their tickets and pocket the money. As proof of this was cited an instance last year when complimentary passes were given those trying to scale the fences at the stadium and the recipients then sold the tickets and went back to climb the fence.

"It is not our children in the high schools who are responsible for this problem," said Powell, "but a certain class of boys in the neighborhood of the stadium. The direct result has been that the sale of tickets in all the high schools has been halted, because the students say that they can see the games for nothing."

"One of our high school principals volunteered to take as his guests the graduating class of a grade school, provided they appeared with the principal of the grade school, and he was greatly disappointed when only 15 or 20 showed up."

Schroeder reiterated his statement that until the situation is changed, no action will be taken.

Detroit Coach Wants Passer to Get Some Credit

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Oct. 27.—Coach Charles E. Dorrals of the University of Detroit thinks it is harder to throw a football pass than to catch one—and he wants the passer to get some credit as a result of a touchdown.

Offering a suggestion to the rule-makers, Coach Dorrals said he would like to see a thrower on a touchdown play should be given equal credit in the table of point-makers with the man who actually takes the ball over the goal line.

"Generally," he said, "the hard part of the passing play is on the passer's end. It's harder to throw accurately when hard pressed by the defense than to catch a ball sailing into your hands. With six points coming to the passer as well as the man who makes the touchdown, the latter would be much more inclined to play as a passer."

Dorrals, saying he believed coaches and players generally would welcome the change, declared that "most of the coaches agree with me that individual credit is a detriment to good team play and would like to see the whole thing changed. But so long as it's continued they would like to see it modified, as I have indicated."

Medical Test Shows Stag Is Physically Fit

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—A worried old man, the lines of uncertainty written all over his brow, stepped into a doctor's office for a physical examination.

An hour later, his eyes ablaze with determination, he strutted out to hand Father Time another licking.

It was Amos Alonzo Stagg, 70-year-old patriarch of American football.

"Through? Through?" he repeated. "I guess not for a while yet. I'm in good physical condition. My blood pressure's 120. A lot of young men would like to be that healthy."

The physician's pronouncement of physical fitness has fired the comeback spark to a roaring flame in the Staggian heart. And today, cheered by thousands of alumni, students and an admiring administration, he appears to have clinched his campaign to stick as head football coach at Chicago, almost certainly for another year and probably for the rest of his life.

Three years ago, when he was 67, Stagg retired from his post as head coach of the University of Chicago, but he was announced two weeks ago today, but he has turned them down to stay at Chicago.

Pepped up by the performance of the Tigers against Iowa State, Stagg is planning to meet with the faculty on Friday night to discuss his return. Students are expected to take part in the parade and listen to oratory that will take place in Jesse Hall Auditorium.

SOLDAN FIGURES ON VICTORY OVER M'KINLEY TEAM

By Harold Tubfill.

Soldan is expected to have a "breather" in its City High School League football campaign when it meets the tail-end McKinley eleven tomorrow afternoon at the Public School Stadium at 3:30 o'clock.

Soldan shares first place in the league with Roosevelt and Cleveland.

A "breather" for a team in football parlance is a game in which the opposition is not overly strong and the stronger team can breeze through the contest without great exertion. While on paper it appears that McKinley will not cause the contenders much anxiety, yet the Gold Bugs cannot be treated to the public ease and a graduated scale be established for seats within the stadium, such as 50 cents for seats within the 40-yard lines and 10 cents for a seat near the goal line.

Here's an "if." If the McKinley offensive ever starts functioning, it will be hard to predict the outcome of the game, because Coach Norman Jones' boys have shown that they are defensively sound, holding their opponents to 18 points in five games, 20 of which were counted by Cleveland last week. McKinley has only a safety, scored against Cleveland, to its credit.

Jones does not contemplate altering the Gold Bug's line, unless it will be to start Edgie Gilpin—one of McKinley's two left-footed punters—at fullback in Bill Elliott's place. Rudy Verlinick, Julius Blake and Bob Grady will round up the backfield. On the line will be Amar and O'Connell, ends; Jacob and Snyder, tackles; De Fillo and Bauerlein, guards; and Tom Sadler, center.

Against this aggregation, Coach Jimmy Cook will start the Soldan eleven that conquered Central, 19 to 8, in the opening game. The West Enders' strength lies in the passing ability of Bob Minkey, but undoubtedly Minkey won't be called upon to throw passes when he is near his goal line and the opposing backs have not pulled in to smear his plunges. This situation came up in the Central game, but as Minkey's pass was grounded and not intercepted by Central, no harm was done. Against the second-string Central, he made a pass from Erthim to Straith for a total gain of 78 yards.

Backfield Combination.
Minkey, who also does the kicking, got some splendid training from Charles Huston, Quinlan and Ahsara, and it is not likely that Cook will disturb this quartet to use Milton Raines at the beginning of the game. Raines is a halfback.

The Soldan line will consist of Neal Glass and Joseph, ends; Harry Faintich and Melvin Wetzel, tackles; Thomas and Tom Zorunick, guards; and John Henson, center. Harry Koplar, who is making a strong bid for a tackle berth, may start on the right side of the line.

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs.
At fifty, you can be in your prime.
Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years?
There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and fed fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.
This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it's so easy to use.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

SAFETY IN THE SKIES

4-pillar tubes keep these giant planes out of the path of storms

4-pillar tubes which have the strength to protect their vital accuracy! 4-pillar tubes are used in radio receivers by Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc. (The Lindbergh Line) Western Air Express Eastern Air Transport, Inc. and by other famous lines in the country.

YOUR plane is on the line, eager for the take-off... the motors ahead-beat an impatient tattoo. Suddenly the grass below flattens to the ground from the propeller-blast. Slowly at first—then as though pushed by a giant spring, you gather speed across the field. Gently the earth drops away; trees turn to bushes. . . . You're aloft! And relaxed in a comfortable chair, you gaze from the window of your plane down to the landscape below. You feel no fear—why should you? For air transportation is now a business, employing every known scientific safeguard. Five years ago, your pilot would have been flying into unknown air and weather conditions. Today, as you fly, he receives weather reports every 15 minutes by radio—receives them through 4-pillar tubes. From points all along the line, reports are flashed to him: "Clear, with unlimited ceiling ahead."

Great air-lines take no chances. Motor vibration, and the jolts of landing, could easily damage fragile radio tubes and interrupt the service. That's why they depend on Eveready Raytheon—rugged Notice the four strong pillars. The fragile parts cannot move even as the plane breathes from their fixed position. All other tubes have only two supports. Jolts and vibration often impair their accuracy.

INQUIRY INTO CHARGES OF DUMPING ORDERED

Customs Bureau Acts on Complaint Involving Stearic Acid, Rubber Footwear.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Customs Bureau acted yesterday to prevent dumping of stearic acid and rubber footwear in this country from abroad.
F. X. A. Eble, commissioner, said at the conclusion of a hearing that a suspicion of dumping order against importation of the acid from the Netherlands would be issued by customs appraisers within a day or two.
Domestic manufacturers alleged Holland and Russia were selling the product in the United States at less than its fair value as contemplated by the provisions of the 1921 anti-dumping act. The bureau also ordered customs appraisers to suspend appraisement of all rubber footwear from Czechoslovakia, pending completion of an investigation as to whether the anti-dumping act should be invoked. Importers will be permitted to give bond subject to forfeiture if it is held finally that the imports violate the statute.
The commissioner has already notified customs collectors to refuse entry to Japanese matches unless plainly and properly marked.

INQUEST INTO AUTO KILLING

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned today in the death at City Hospital No. 2 last Monday of Miss Emma Blackmore, 45 years old, a Negro, of a fractured skull suffered when she was struck by an automobile at Olive street and Bwing avenue, Oct. 19.
Witnesses testified that the woman, who was on her way to church with two companions, apparently became confused while walking through traffic, and stepped into the path of an automobile driven by Ralph Coleman, a clerk, of 5897 Washington boulevard. Miss Blackmore lived at 2325A Laclede avenue.

HOOPER NAMES COMMITTEE FOR DECEASED INQUIRY

Asks Three Negroes and Army Officer to Investigate Labor Conditions on Flood Control Work.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Taking cognizance of charges that private contractors were mistreating Negro laborers on flood-control projects along the Lower Mississippi River, President Hoover yesterday appointed a committee of three Negroes and one white man to make an immediate investigation.
He named Dr. Robert R. Moton, president of Tuskegee Institute; Judge James A. Cobb of Washington, D. C., and Eugene Knickerbocker, executive secretary of the Urban League of New York City, representing the Negro race, and Lieutenant-Colonel U. S. Grant, representing the United States Army.

A White House announcement said Mr. Hoover had asked this committee "to make a thorough and impartial inquiry as promptly as possible" and report the results of the investigation to him immediately.
For months charges have been made that conditions in some places amounting almost to slavery existed on the privately contracted Government projects along the Mississippi River.

FRACTIONAL GAINS FOR FEW STOCKS; TRADE SLOW

Share Market Wobbles Uncertainly and Narrowly for Fourth Successive Day but Final Tone Is Steady.

STOCK PRICE TENDS.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—For the fourth successive session the stock market wobbled uncertainly in a narrow trading range today. The final tone was steady. Transfers were only about $60,000,000.

The market had shown moderate rallying tendencies for a time, but stock traders remained extremely cautious, and it took only a few minutes in the last hour to erase most of the gains ranging from one to two points in several prominent issues.

Several of the rails were firm for a time, and New York Central, Erie and Southern Pacific were among the one-point gainers in United States Steel and American Telephone.

Oils were firmer in the last few minutes, with Standard of New Jersey and Standard Oil of Indiana among the gainers. Early gains of about two points in Public Service of New Jersey, Home State and Freeport Texas were retained. People's Gas rose four in the final dealings, while Borden sold off two.

Reduction was another soft spot off two.

Recent pressure in the wheat market abated, and that staple closed with gains of 1/2 to 1 cent a bushel, virtually at the day's best prices. Corn was up fractionally, and cotton continued to creep higher, closing up 25 to 45 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges were mixed with sterling narrowing its fluctuations, ruling at $3.25, up 1/2 of a cent. The French franc was somewhat reactionary.

Aside from additional railroad earnings reports for September, which compared favorably with the figures for the same month of the year, the market was influenced by the overnight news to influence market sentiment one way or the other. The Bureau of Labor wholesale commodity price index showed no change in the month ended Oct. 22, against the previous week. Dun reported a small decline, as compared with Oct. 1 prices.

Foreign bank statements again showed for both the Bank of England and the Bank of France moderate increase in their holdings of gold, while circulation declined slightly.

The New York Federal Reserve bank made no announcement regarding its 2 1/2 per cent reduction after the directors meeting today.

Day's 10 most active stocks today: United A., 2 1/2; no change; Del. Lack & W., 1 1/2; down 1/2; Gen. Motors, 1 1/2; up 1/2; U. S. Steel, 3 1/2; up 1/2; Am. Tel. & Tel., 1 1/2; no change; C. J. J., 3 1/2; up 1/2; A. C. S., 1 1/2; down 1/2; U. S. Central, 2 1/2; up 1/2; South. Pac., 1 1/2; up 1/2; Am. Can., 5 1/2; up 1/2.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE
By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Oct. 27.—Business continued small on the Stock Exchange. Prices were steady, due to the further drop in sterling exchange. Gold-edged securities, industrials, trans-Atlantic and oil shares improved later on the recovery of sterling exchange, which helped to make a better tone at the close.

PARIS.—The firmness of rates gave the Bourse a good tone at the opening. International issues improved while mining and rubber shares also gained. The closing was well orientated.

BERLIN.—Prices were unsettled on the Bourse, but showed signs of improvement at the close.

Three New Freight Trains.
The St. Louis-San Francisco Railway has announced that, due to increased car loadings it will place three new freight trains in operation. A new train from Birmingham, Ala., to Kansas City will run during the afternoon, and another new train between St. Louis and Memphis will perform local freight service. The third train will bring perishables from Florida to St. Louis 1 1/2 hours faster than at present.

COPPER MARKET
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Copper was available for shipment from first hands today at 5 1/2 cents a pound, and the December contract for 1933. This was the first quarter of a point from previous quotations. While custom quotations were steady, it was understood in some quarters that the metal was being sold at 5 1/2 cents. There were no reports of any new production apparently being out of the mine.

The price of copper was slightly lower today, being off 1/2 to 1/4 cent a pound, at 5 1/2 to 5 1/4 cents.

TODAY'S NEW YORK STOCK MARKET (COMPLETE)

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Total sales on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to 739,100 shares, compared with 689,340 yesterday, 1,045,160 a week ago and 1,243,118 a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 77,777,777 shares, compared with 48,719,374 a year ago and 691,662,350 two years ago.

COLONEL SHOT DEAD AND WOMAN WOUNDED

COOL WILLIAM M. INGLE.

—Associated Press Photo.
SEATTLE (Wash.) police have accepted her statement that he shot her, then killed himself in his apartment Saturday. Miss Nash, who was Ingle's secretary, said also that she was his wife. Police, investigating the case, found a night-gown with a bullet hole in it and the Colonel's blood-stained pajamas in a closet. Miss Nash was dressed and Ingle clad in fresh pajamas when authorities reached the apartment.

IRISH FREE STATE SEEKS TO CONTROL GRAIN PRODUCTION

Bill Drafted for Payment of Bounty to Growers and Regulation of Imports of Stock Feed.

By the Associated Press.
DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Oct. 27.—The text of a government bill designed to give the state control of the growing and milling of all cereals, and the importation of all foodstuffs for livestock was made public today.
The bill provides for the registration of growers, millers and importers, who alone will be permitted to deal for resale in the products affected by the bill. The measure fixes standard prices for home-grown wheat and provides a bounty for such wheat, but only when grown on registered areas.
The standard price for 280-pound barrel of wheat would be 23 shillings 6 pence (about $4) between the months of August and December in 1933 and 1934 under the bill.
Between January and July in 1934 and 1935 the price would be 25 shillings (about $4.25). The bounty will be equal to the difference between the ascertained and standard prices a barrel.
The development of wheat growing and milling industries by the Free State is in line with its policy under President Eamon de Valera of making the country, as far as possible, independent of outsiders for foodstuffs. A tariff war between the Free State and Great Britain over the defaulted Irish land annuities has sprung up, and as a result each country has levied a tariff of 30 per cent against the other.

British Levy on Imports From Irish Free State Nov. 15.
By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Oct. 27.—After Nov. 15, duties will be assessed on imports into the United Kingdom from the Irish Free State as though they were shipped from a foreign country. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions, informed the House of Commons yesterday that on that date the preferences granted the Dominions under last year's tariff act would expire. The Free State, unlike the other Dominions, did not conclude a new trade agreement with Great Britain at Ottawa in July.

This means that in addition to the 20 per cent duty imposed on Irish products under the tariff levied in retaliation for failure to pay land annuities, Irish products will also be tagged with the general 10 per cent tariff, increasing the levy to 30 per cent.

Senator Norris Much Better.
By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 27.—The condition of Senator George W. Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, was much improved today. He left his bed for the first time since he entered a hospital here Monday, suffering from a cold and throat infection. He expects to leave the hospital tomorrow afternoon, to continue his speaking engagements in the West on behalf of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Lester Casanover, 15 years old, 4356 Beck avenue, suffered a fractured shoulder and a skull injury when knocked from his bicycle at Morganford road and Fyler avenue at 5:30 p. m. yesterday by an automobile, the driver of which failed to stop. Lester was riding south, and was struck by a machine going in the same direction.

Edwardsville Girl Dies; Hurt in Auto Crash After Dance.
Verna Cunningham, 17 years old, of Edwardsville, died today at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Granite City, of injuries suffered early last Friday when an automobile in which she was riding with five other persons who also were injured, crashed into the rear end of a truck on Madison avenue in Granite City. They were going to Edwardsville after attending a dance in Granite City.

Miss Cunningham, daughter of Robert Cunningham, Deputy Circuit Clerk of Madison County, suffered fractures of the skull, right leg and right wrist. She was seated in the front seat of the automobile, which was being driven by Glen Schneider of Granite City. Two other young men and a girl companion are still at St. Elizabeth's Hospital under treatment.

The truck was driven by Russell Freeland of Detroit.

THE BLACK PANTHER
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great animal painter, Paul Bransom... inspired by the natural ferocity of "Bagheera," the black panther in the famous "Jungle Book." "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

GOOD TASTE

By EMILY POST

Departures and Arrivals.

Dear Mrs. Post:
BUSINESS transfer moved us from our location in less than a week's time. I, therefore, left some dinner obligations. As these were first invitations, what shall I do now?

Answer: Write notes of thanks for kindness shown you, and explain your sudden going away. Send a box of candy or flowers to those whose hospitality you would especially like to pay.

Dear Mrs. Post:
My husband has been transferred to another city and he writes me that people are being very hospitable to him and he frequently invites him to dinner. I am to join him in the near future. Is it my place to call on these people just because of their kindness to my husband, or should they call on me first, as I am a stranger and a newcomer?

Answer: According to convention the stranger must wait until called upon or invited by the older inhabitants. But most rules should be interpreted according to modifying circumstances. If the community is an informal one, there is no reason why your husband should not say to Mr. Partner, who has invited him several times for dinner, "My wife has arrived and I should love to have her meet Mrs. Partner. Do you think you and she could take dinner with us on Saturday?" Then judge by his answer what to do. If he says, "I know she'd like to," then your husband says, "I'll tell Mary to write her a note." You write a note telling her that your husband has told you how kind she and Mr. Partner have been, and ask if they will dine with you. If she declines, you must make no further move until she invites you.

Dear Mrs. Post:
I am going to visit a city in which I have acquaintances who have asked me to let them know if I go to their town. What is the way to do this?

Answer: Send your visiting card with the address at which you are staying written on it.

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts. Edited by Dr. J. J. Gaitan, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

How Vitamins Affect the Nervous System

ONE of the earliest observations leading to the discovery of the existence of vitamins and of the relationship of their lack in the diet to defects in the nervous system, was made during a study of the disease known as beriberi. Dr. Eijkman showed in 1897 that a disease resembling beriberi could be produced in fowls by feeding them on white or polished rice—that with the natural brown coating removed.

In subsequent studies it was shown that beriberi is particularly due to the absence in the diet of vitamin B.

Since then the relationship of vitamins to health and disease in the nervous system has been extended, and other vitamins in addition to vitamin B have been demonstrated to have an effect on the nervous system.

Thus, vitamin B has been shown to contain two elements designated as vitamin B₁ and vitamin B₂.

The absence of the first affects the nervous system, causing what is known as polyneuritis, while the absence of vitamin B₂ contributes to the disease known as pellagra.

The absence of vitamin E in experimental animals causes degenerative changes in the cerebellum, and the Mellin's of England have shown that young dogs deprived of vitamin A develop degenerative changes in the spinal cord.

The bearing of all these experimental studies upon the practical aspects of diet are not such as to cause the individual to become over-concerned with vitamins and with their place in the dietary.

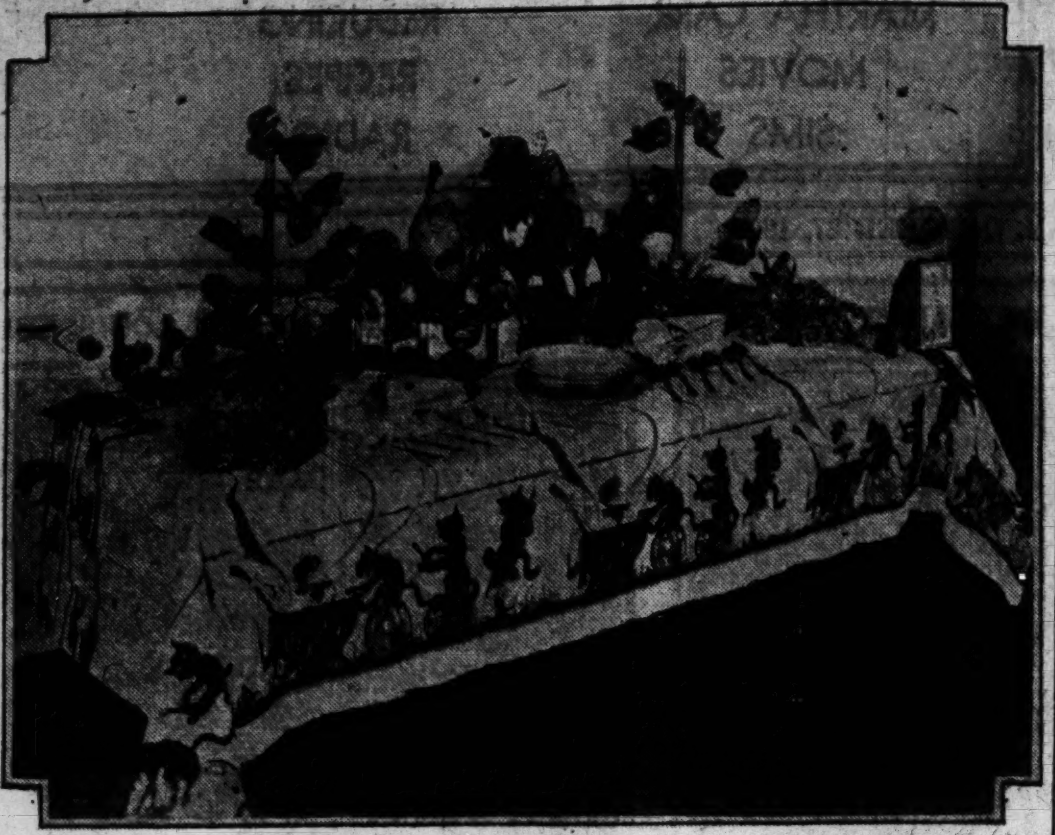

It is one thing to deprive an experimental animal of an essential vitamin and still another to have it inadequately represented in the ordinary diet of the human being.

It is sufficient in practical usage to include in the diet what are known as the protective foods, namely, milk and milk foods, green vegetables, particularly of the leafy variety, fruits and eggs.

Avoiding Snarls

When sewing with a double thread make a knot in each of the two ends of the thread and then draw through as usual. This will avoid the thread snarling, as it so frequently does when both ends of the thread are tied in the same knot.

FOR the TABLE on HALLOWE'EN

Part of the success of your Halloween party may depend on your decorations... and here's one way you can make your supper table attractive.

HALLOWE'EN merriment makes apple-duckers hungry.

Walking backward downstairs to see your future mate, escaping from ghosts who suddenly appear from behind doors—these activities also produce good appetites. That is why a rather hefty buffet supper is welcome.

Cover the dining room table with paper cloths, alive with cats and witches. Pumpkins, made of paper, serve well as centerpieces. Paper witches on broomsticks, china cats, little skeleton men made of wire, all these can be bought for about 10 cents each.

Serve your buffet supper along about the middle of the evening. Put all the food on the table at once, including the coffee, then pass the good word that "cats" are ready.

Plates with casserole of tamales, celery sticks and buttered bread should be passed about to the other guests.

Here's the tamales in casserole for hefty joy-makers. Cover a piece of round steak, weighing one pound, with water. Simmer until tender. Strain off and save the broth. Put the meat through the chopper.

Measure out one and one-half cups of the beef broth and place in top of double boiler. Add to it the following: One cup of cornmeal, first moistened with a little cold water; then the chopped steak, three-fourths cup of chopped onion, one clove of garlic chopped fine, two cups of tomato (canned), one and one-half tablespoons of chili powder, which you can buy at any good grocery. Stir until thick, then cook in the double boiler for about one and one-half hours.

You can do this earlier in the day, of course. Half an hour before you serve your buffet supper, grease a casserole baking dish, add one and one-half cups of sliced ripe olives to the meat mixture and pour it into the casserole. Bake in hot oven until it is temptingly brown.

MY Beauty Hint

By ANN DVORAK

ANN DVORAK

ONE of the best ways to achieve every woman's ambition—to appear distinctive and individual—avoiding the monotony of looking the same all the time, is to change the hairdress as often as possible.

The great difficulty, however, is to find a hair-cut that lends itself easily to change. I solve the problem by having my hair cut short near the top of the head, and then into graduated lengths until it reaches a long bob toward the neckline.

Thus I can part and wave my hair in many different ways.

Stork Panties

Mothers spend a good many dollars on rubber panties for baby's first year, but that amount could be lessened if proper care is taken of them. After washing and drying the panties put them in a box containing a few spoonful of talcum powder or cornstarch and shake vigorously. Shake off surplus powder and you will find they are as silky and smooth as when new. Consequently they will not tear as easily and will last weeks longer.

REDUCING without DIETING

by LILYAN MALMSTEAD

LILYAN MALMSTEAD is a graduate of the Sargent School of Physical Education; Instructor of physiotherapy, Children's Clinic, Schenck Hospital, New York City; and of Mount Sinai Hospital, Cleveland. Research work in physiotherapy, American Hospital, Nemilly, Hospital des Enfants and the Great Ormond and King's College Hospitals, London. Her system results from fifteen years' intensive study.

WOMEN between the ages of 40 and 50 are confronted with the same problem—no other busts.

Years ago, when no heavy feeding was heard of than breast-feeding, the breasts often dropped, enlarging the walls at the same time. Because only the more pronounced when woman, in despair, adopted suggestions and advice from those who were unequal to the task.

Lilyan Malmstead tried to give them as a result of all this, she was instructed to wear certain apparel which was advertised to give the necessary assistance.

This idea, while it may have had the desired comfort, did little to aid in the reduction of the bust and woman again was in panic.

After 15 years of experimentation I consider such exercises as prescribed the only methods to pursue. Remember, you must give the exercises a fair trial to convince yourself of their merit. Do not expect them to produce results instantly. However, in two weeks you should see a decided loss.

If you find the exercises, after a period of six weeks, make no difference, you may be sure the exercise development is caused by the improper function of the glands. You should consult your doctor.

Stand on toes with feet together, arms close to sides.

(a) Raise arms in back of body. Do not move any other part of body.

(b) Bring arms in front of body crossing wrists, forward, upward and over head. At the same time lower the body slightly backward, but be sure to reach and stretch the body as high up as possible. When you can't reach any further, bend the knees slightly, turning back of hands toward the face, at the same time forcing elbows out.

The Home Fire Drill

Every member of the household should know how to send in a fire alarm or what number to call on the telephone in case of fire. It takes but a little while to install in a child's mind what he should do in an emergency and it might be of hands toward the face, at the same time forcing elbows out.

Have the rickety ladder mended and braced.

SEEN in THE STORES

By SYLVIA

Ex-husbands are certain to faint when they see the new jeweled brooches which some wagish jeweler are displaying in their advance Christmas collections. Diamonds surrounding an enormous sapphire, diamonds and emeralds set exquisitely in platinum, small diamonds and big diamonds in intricate bow-knot arrangement—all too glittering to even think about in these times. After all, costume jewelry counters where a piece of glass is a piece of glass, and copper shares honor with aluminum makes me feel more at home.

If you haven't a feather in your cap, a tassel on your hat is the next best suggestion. One of the smartest new turbans which a St. Louis store is showing is folded over the top of the crown where a matching tasseled dangle. Tasseled trimming on dresses and coats is another example of grandmother's fancies that youth likes.

Seen in a St. Louis shop was a winter coat that would be almost everything to almost any woman. It was black with silver fox—a combination which everyone knows is regal. A swirling cape, waistline length, was collared and edged with the fox. This cape was detachable, leaving a plain black coat for very tailored wear. But the best trick of all was in the fox collar which could separate itself from the cape, so that collar and coat could go places and leave the cape at home. Or better yet, the collar could go and leave both cape and coat at home.

Matching writers not only are lettering their moods with their stationery but with the ink they use. Jewel shades in ink are now available and it is considered quite chic to ensemble blue-bordered stationery with sapphire ink; silver and lavender paper with silver ink; or white and green with jade ink.

A jig-saw puzzle is something which grandmothers as well as children cannot get along without. The stores are displaying small ones, large ones, simple ones and various ones which you can buy for the price of an ice cream cone or of a formal dinner. Or if you've bought so many that you don't want any more solved ones lying around, some stores will rent you a new one just like they rent you a book.

Colors for Spring Already Decided

NEW YORK. WHETHER winter comes or not, spring is already in the minds of fashion analysts and color experts. Beige, for instance, has already been decided upon as one of the leading colors for the 1933 spring season.

The Textile Color Card Association has selected two shades of beige to be promoted by leather and shoe industries for spring and summer. One is a strong shade and the other is a natural tone. Both complement the new pastel shades as well as the light beige costumes which are expected to be popular in the spring.

The other staple color recommended is a dark shade called Indes brown, to keep with the new costume browns, town greens and reds; a "wasager brown" for sports and walking shoes to complement the navy, Oxford gray and rust shades of fabrics; "Admiralty blue" to be worn with the increasingly popular navy and wide range of softer blues as well as the new spring grays; black, especially favored as an accent with the new beiges, grays and "washed out tones," and white.

A Suitable Gift

A nice gift for the person who travels a great deal is a set of shoe bags made of flowered cotton crepe bound with tape. The traveler's clothes are protected from shoe polish and yet these thin little bags take up no extra room.

NEW BOW on OLD DRESS

For last year's dark silk or wool tailored dress, organdie bows and cuffs are stunning as trimming and remarkable as economy.

To make the bow shown in the photograph, you will need a strip of bordered organdie about 4 by 8 inches. Tuck it across the upper center for 4 inches. Turn under a tiny hem, and run the edge under a coarse unthreaded machine needle for perforations through which you can whip on the edging.

EVERYDAY RELIGION

By DR. JOSEPH FORT NEWTON.

The House of Mystery.

ONCE upon a time a man came to a great city full of marble, each vying with the other in splendor. But in the heart of the city there stood an old House, of another order of architecture, simple in its dignity and vine-covered. He marveled at it. It had no steps, no props; and he wondered how it kept standing.

When, after a hundred years, his son came to the city, the palaces had vanished, and others of a new style had risen in their places. But, lo! the old House still stood, unchanged, as if the tooth of time, which breaks everything else, had broken itself on that. Again, after a hundred years, it was so. The old House was still the same while all around was new and strange.

Amid the restless, giddy-paced city it was a place of quiet. Out of the palaces came many sick folk and the streets were full of the weary and heavy-laden, whom no physician helped. But whoever went into the old House that seemed, like them, itself to need a physician, came out whole and glad. For in the old House dwelt One who laid His hands upon the sick and the weary, and they were made well of their hurts.

So stands the House of God in the bright city of man. It was not built yesterday; it will not decay tomorrow. Our gay and hurrying time may think its architecture antiquated, and its old and simple furniture antique. Amid the clatter called progress man seeks him out many inventions, and the old House by the side of the street, seems quaintly out of date, its ways mere habits of a time gone by.

But the House of Mystery still stands, a witness of the Unseen and Eternal, of truths that were true ages ago and grow not old. Gently, silently, it rebukes a cleverness which mistakes itself for culture, and a license that wears the name of liberty. Patiently it waits for the race of men to return from a wisdom that is not wise and a folly that ends in futility.

At last, weary of seeking without finding and journeying without arriving, man turns aside from the noisy street into the House of Peace, and learns a secret sought in vain but given to the humble of heart. In the Silence he listens to the dim appeal of that Voice which speaks, however faintly, to all who dwell upon the earth—a melody deeper than infancy and old age, profounder than Love and Death.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.

IN this unreal parade:

Noon is the great leveler on the movie set. Fifteen hundred people swarm the wharf in motley assortment of uniforms and costumes. Soldiers, weeping women carrying tiny British flags; officers and privates, high-born ladies and cockney "ladies"; no-nonsense men and scrubwomen, all swayed by the common grief and excitement of seeing their men off to the Boer war.

The camera catches all this in "Cavalcade," and it's a colorful scene with those feathered chapeaux, strange outlandish dresses and suits that were the last vogue in the '90s and not so very far from the "smart thing" for women today.

COMES noon. Fifteen hundred people of the '90s become the cry of "lunch" just serves fifty-a-day extras, hungry with up-to-the-minute appetites. And 1500 box lunches—each containing the same sandwiches, also and fruit—are passed out to soldiers—officers and privates alike—and to the women—high-born ladies and cockney "ladies" alike.

Charles Laughton, the chubby English actor, is being compared to Emil Jannings for histrionic power, and if sincerity of performance means anything he has all his studio claims for him.

IN Laughton's first Hollywood picture, "Devil and the Deep," he had a diving scene. He wanted it to be realistic, and never having drowned before, he didn't know how far he could go without actually achieving the experience. He asked to have a pulmonologist around just in case. I'd heard the story and asked him about it the other day.

"Yes, that's true," he said, "but there wasn't anything noble about it, no spring-for-my-art or anything like that. It was purely selfish. I knew that drowning was my best scene and I wanted it to be remembered."

IF MY OPINION ASK

by MARTHA

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WROTE you once before, so please, this time, print this in your column. There's a girl just started in high school in my class whom I like very much. Our class started out a hike and by her action she seemed to like me, but I found out she liked my boy friend. I got so jealous when I found it out that I don't speak to him and pay little attention to her. Shall I speak again to the boy and would you try to go with her? I think she likes me a little.

AL G.

AL, I see you are a relenting some. And the moral of that is: Don't show your hand so plainly. The girl has a right to prefer which ever she chooses and your friend has the right to make himself as agreeable as he can. You were not very sporting. The way to win in such affairs is to compete, not to sulk. You see, you are handicapped now by the record you have established as a quitter. You'll have to work harder, but don't let that discourage you.

Dear Mrs. Carr: YOU are always fair enough to print both sides. You printed the letter of the husband who wanted a night out alone and now I think you will print the other side.

I think it is much nicer for a man and wife to go out together, but if husband wants a night out alone, wife should consent and take care out herself, so he can have a chance at a night at home without their seeing what a nice feeling it is to have your wife going out with "girl friends," as he says he is going with "boy friends." I believe in fifty-fifty. This is one who knows. I had the same experience, and now we don't go out unless we go together. This is the only way to live if you are married. When I started to take a night off, too, husband was glad to stay at home.

THREE TIMES TEN.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

AGREE with your answer to "Brokenhearted," that boys are in the habit of finding out the girl's name, seem to think they can act any way they want, and come back any old time.

But here's one that's not like that, that I want to bring before you.

FRED.

It is pleasing to have your testimony; you stand probably helps raise the standard.

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE an English teacher who simply squelches me; no less! I am so interested in the subject, but it's pure agony when I'm in his classroom. His tapping and his sending chills up and down my spine. Don't think I go around deliberately looking for this sort of thing in people, or that my imagination is on a spree. I've tried to be patient, but he positively "crabs my game." It's impossible to change my program; I've got to remain in his class.

Could you suggest something that would help me?

I have known of teachers of this type who are sometimes mistaken in the pupil, or who need to study a little more psychology and kindness along with their pedagogy. And it is possible that personal resentment of some kind may enter into it; but one can hardly imagine a man in that position with so diminutive a point of view.

I should try to eliminate as nearly as possible in my mind, the personal element. Your lesson be the thing! He happens to be a temporary medium for you to get the knowledge you are seeking; keep your sensibilities for your friends.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a girl 14 years old, 5 feet tall and weigh only 88 pounds.

Please tell me how I can gain. I am a "skinny-shy." I wonder if I see a boy coming toward me, I always run. I know this is very silly, but I cannot help it. Please do answer.

SKINNY.

Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and I will mail you an article on gaining and developing.

Forget yourself and try to think you must just be polite and friendly with boys, as you are with girls. Talk to them just the same. They can run faster than you, probably. The fact that they do not try, it is because they may not be thinking about you.

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

FINISHING my education in Washington, D. C. I have been, for almost three years, companion to a lady who travels constantly on the coast and in the Orient. I left this position in order to establish for myself, a well-ordered personal life and make some friends among young people. But in the six months I have been in St. Louis as governess in an ex-

When St. Louisans Go to the Hunt Club

Sylvia Stiles Goes Along to See What is Being Worn

THE picturesque beauty of autumn hillside overlooking the Bridlespur Hunt Club presented a colorful setting for the smartest outdoor event of the season when the annual race meeting was held there last Saturday afternoon.
All of the rich foliage tints which contribute to the beauty of nature at this season of the year were reflected in the costumes. Dark, burnt orange and darker russet tones, red varying from bright scarlet to deep Burgundy, green ranging from bronze tints of fading leaves to the deep green of pine, and first, many shades of brown, including that of seared leaves, the gray of autumn clouds, and even the vivid blue of the sky on a cold clear day, were prominent among the colors in the boxes, on the talleys and along the rail where the socially prominent women gathered.
As the day was unusually warm for late October, many women wore dresses without coats, or with accompanying short jackets to match their dresses. The majority of these costumes were trimmed with fur, a large number having cape collars of the wool material banded with fur, but many having separate fur capes. Touches of fur on Ascot scarves and on sleeves proved interesting from a fashion standpoint. Feathered woolsens were well represented, shagreened hennas with crepe woolsens. The sailor type of hat with bandeau was worn becomingly by many well dressed women, especially when fur-trimmed, could not be overlooked.

GRAY emphasized its importance as one of the season's interesting colors, often being allied with brown. One of the most stunning costumes illustrating the use of gray and brown was worn by Mrs. Sharp Exzell. This was an original Le Long model which Mrs. Exzell purchased in Paris. The draped dress was in a shade of medieval brown, ocher woolen feathered in gray. It had a small draped shoulder cape banded with ombre astrakhan, shading from light gray to brown, which was high at the neckline with gardenia. A jaunty little toque was of the fur. Brown suede belt, brown suede slip-on gloves and brown suede shoes were smart details of this costume.
A handsome gray costume was worn by Mrs. C. Drummond Jones. This was of a lightweight wool fabric with interesting skirt panels of striped gray wool. A waistline cape was banded alternately with chin-chilla and the gray wool. Mrs. Jones' small sailor was trimmed with flat ostrich curls in two shades of gray. Her shoes were gray suede.
Among other outstanding gray costumes was that of Mrs. Gates Williams, who wore a chenille-type suit with short jacket which was untrimmed except for gray metal buttons. Her knitted blouse was in a shade of old gold. A sailor of gray felt sponsored her knits of gray and black interlocking around the crown. Black reptile oxford and a black bag were noted. Mrs. Marietta Niedringhaus, another smartly dressed spectator in gray, wore a tweed-like wool one-piece dress buttoned close to the neck. A brown fur scarf, brown kid gloves, brown sailor hat with tailored bow in front, and brown gillie oxford completed her costume. Mrs. David R. Calhoun, who also approved the vogue of gray with brown, appeared in a feathery woolen dress of light gray, over which she wore a cape of brown kolinsky fur. Her hat was a bandeau sailor trimmed with brown ribbon. Brown gloves and brown shoes accented this accessory preference.

A COSTUME which offered an interesting study because of several new fashion features was worn by Mrs. Adelbert von Gontard. A frock of crepe wool in a rust tone had a matching jacket trimmed with brown-dyed moire. The cape collar of the jacket tied close to the throat, gave a wide shoulder-line to the costume. Mrs. von Gontard's becoming sailor was of soft wool in a matching shade of rust. There was a high buttoned collar at the front with a gold metal ring. Her pants were brown suede and she carried a brown bag.
In the box with Mrs. von Gontard was her sister, Mrs. Barbara von Schilling, who wore a striking frock of red crepe woolen trimmed in an unusual manner with gray ombre Persian lamb. There was a high buttoned collar of the fabric with an added collar of the fur extending in a coat effect below the waistline where it terminated in fur pockets. Sleeves were bloused. A snakeskin bag.

Chapped hands will respond beautifully to vinegar application.
1 teaspoonful crushed white pepper.
4 tablespoons water.
2 teaspoonsful good vinegar.
4 yolks of eggs.
2 ounces sweet butter.
Juice of half lemon.
Salt to taste.
Boil together the pepper, vinegar and water until they are reduced to half their quantity. When cool add the yolks. Beat until creamy. Put in a double boiler and add it to the mixture ounce by ounce and keep on stirring. Season with salt and lemon juice. Strain through a cheesecloth. Then pour the sauce over the fish and serve.

RESPONSES OTHER THAN THE ONE-OVER-ONE
AS I have said before, the fact that you are unable to respond one-over-one does not necessarily imply weakness.
When you develop a partnership you will find that the advantages are all for you if you do not overbid your hand. Providing that your partner has some reserve behind his bid he will always allow you some leeway to give you a further opportunity to show your true values. Three primary tricks in the opener's hand and three in yours only account for the tricks. The average contract player is not a magician and to produce the surplus tricks without distribution does need some kind of good plays.

Good plays can often pick one or two tricks out of the air by making subtle, brilliant and ingenious plays. These triumphs are achieved by the squeeze play, the end play and the strip play. Nevertheless the finest player cannot make four extra tricks against perfect defense. In one of the national championship events of last year I sat in the South position and the following deal came along:
♠ A-Q-7-4-2
♥ K
♦ A-10-7
♣ A-Q-J-7

North and South vulnerable.
The bidding:
North East South West
1♣ (1) Pass 3♥ (2) Pass
3♥ (3) Pass 3♥ (4) Pass
3♥ (5) Pass 3♥ (6) Pass
Explanations of the bidding:
(1) The hand contains two big losers for an opening two bid under our system. Any response from the partner will be carried to game.
(2) My hand contained fine playing developments and game possibilities, yet it is not strong enough to warrant a jump take-out.
(3) The three-club bid denied adequate support for hearts, but denoted additional values, otherwise two spades or two no trump would be the proper minimum reply. At the same time it is not a response force.
(4) The heart suit was not rebid although a six-card suit would generally be bid a second time. My bid of three no trumps showed my partner a possible diamond stop.
(5) A definite slam try, and shows both a heart honor and a diamond stopper.
(6) The spade king eliminates any finesse in spades. With a heart honor located in North's hand this suit is almost solid. The possession of two long suits to run off assures a very fine play for the slam.

PAY CHECK

A NEW ROMANTIC SERIAL

By ROB EDEN

CHAPTER TEN.

SUDY GRANT'S employees seldom saw him, but when he did come through the store, his visits were talked of for days afterwards. What he had done, what he had worn, what he had said, to whom he had spoken.

Fleur was forgetting him in the role of Sylvia Grant's father. She knew him only as THE SUDY GRANT. Although she didn't call him "the boss" or the "old man" as the others did, still he wasn't the same man she had known.

Or had she ever known him? Had she ever eaten dinner at the same table with him? That part of her acquaintance with him seemed far away, so far away she was beginning to think she had imagined it.

He was taking on some of the glamour for her he had for the other 2000 workers in his great store. The glamour that goes with a kingdom ruled by an absolute monarch. Sudy Grant was the monarch of his store.

It was impossible to believe that he wasn't the monarch of everything else, his home, his clubs, his city. It was impossible to believe what Fleur knew, that Sylvia twisted him around the crimson nail of her little finger; that Mrs. Grant did the same thing in a more subtle way.

She thought of him now with awe, and although she hadn't seen him since that day he had sent her down to Mr. Rosemead, his employment man, she knew from rumors, from gossip that tracked through the store, what he was doing. For the store was like a small world. Some of what happened in the luxurious offices on the eleventh floor inevitably reached the third in the junior misses.

FOR instance, she knew he had sent his personal secretary to California for a rest cure at his own expense, that the curtains in his private office had been changed from crimson velvet to homespun wool, that he invariably ate lunch in his office, and that he was having a squash court built on the roof so he wouldn't have to go to his club at noon.

She knew that he had given up smoking 18 cigars a day on his doctor's orders, and that he had only one after each meal. She knew that he was sending one of the young artists in the advertising department to Fontainebleau to study at Beaux Arts this summer, because he thought the girl had promise, just as she knew that he had cannily in return for his largest signed the same girl to a five-year contract with Grant's.

But when he came into the junior misses one morning and spoke to her, she was surprised. She thought he had forgotten all about her.

"I hear you're getting along fine, Fleur," he said kindly. So he had remembered to ask about her. If she had known Sudy Grant better, she would have known that he had made many inquiries about her work in his store. And that he was pleased because the reports were satisfactory.

She would have known, too, that if her work hadn't been satisfactory she would have found herself shifted to another department without warning.

"Paul wouldn't come into the store," he added, with a slight frown. "Too bad. I think he would have done well here. How's your mother?"

"Fine, Mr. Grant."

"Think she would be interested in coming here? I've thought of her lately in connection with the interior decoration department. She has such fine taste, and she would be an asset."

"Of course, she'd have to learn like the rest of us. I can't offer her much of a salary, but you can tell her to come in to see me if she wants to. The work will be pleasant, not too hard, and interesting to her, I think. Good luck."

HE was gone, and Fleur was standing looking after him. It was kind of him to think of them, to try to help them.

He was talking to Miss Ladishaw now, smiling a little as he talked. He was always gracious to his workers. Miss Ladishaw was very earnest in her short conversation with him. Earnest and proper and businesslike.

She was awed by Sudy Grant, too, as much as the rest of them. Fleur thought. Queer to think of bustling, efficient Miss Ladishaw awed by anyone...

Now PROFESSIONAL BEAUTIES DEMAND

THEIR RIGHTS

With Their Guild in New York and a Union in Chicago, the Lovely Girls You See in the Ads Are Seeking Protection at Their Jobs.

AMERICA'S artists models are getting organized to protect their rights.

Hard times have affected the beautiful girls who pose for artists and photographers just as they have hit everybody else. And so—in Chicago and New York, at least—the girls are banding together for self-protection.

They want to keep wages up to the point where a model can make a decent living.

In Chicago, 50 of the 350 models in the city have organized the Artists and Models' Union and have won recognition by the American Federation of Labor. In New York the Models' Guild has been formed, with a clubhouse for its 300 members and a system whereby jobs and models can be brought together quickly and efficiently.

Visiting the headquarters of either of these organizations, you might find some of your old notions about artists' models in need of revision.

Bernice Argast, one of the most beautiful models in America, is secretary of the Chicago union; and she gives a picture of the typical model, which is quite at variance with the popular idea.

She points out that most models are quiet, home-loving girls, who dream of homes of their own, with loving husbands and babies. Just as any other girls do, and who look with horror on unscrupulous employers who try to do business with them on anything but a professional basis.

To measure up, however, to the exacting standards of a model, Miss Argast adds that a girl must be a perfect 16, stand at least 5 feet 6 inches in her silk stocking feet, and look youthful.

In addition, she must also possess poise, a pleasing smile, and persistence enough to find herself usually cooked. A most loaf, because Fleur had ground up some leftover steak the night before and put it in the icebox. Boiled potatoes, lettuce salad, rolls from the bakery around the corner.

She didn't tell her mother immediately about the job at Grant's. She didn't quite know how to approach the subject.

After dinner when she was doing the dishes, Mrs. Bennett came to the door of the kitchen.

"I'm out of my cream, Fleur. I used the last bit this afternoon." Fleur looked away. The cream Mrs. Bennett had mentioned was a face cream for which she paid $18 a jar.

"It's the only kind I've ever liked—the best I've ever used. I wish now I'd bought more of it in Paris when I was there. If I had known what was going to happen, I would."

"I don't see how we can afford more, mother." They couldn't. That was all there was to it.

"I suppose so, Mrs. Bennett sighed heavily, and turned to go. "But when you get used to things, it's a blow when you have to do without them. I thought maybe we could sell the ermine coat, and I could get some cream, and lots of things we need."

THE ermine coat again. Last night Paul had broached her about selling it, and she had refused.

"I think we're going to need the coat later, mother. And when it's gone, there isn't going to be anything else to sell."

The ermine coat was tempting, she had to admit, but they didn't need to sell it at present. It could get along somehow without selling it. Later—she hated to think about the future. It was so dark, so foreboding. The ermine coat was to be kept for this future.

"I suppose so." Another sigh heavier than the last. "By the way, mother," it was a queer time to mention Mr. Grant's offer, and Fleur leaped at the opportunity. "Mr. Grant wondered if you wouldn't like to go into the interior decoration department at the store. He said you have such excellent taste, and although the job wouldn't pay you much at first, it would be easy and pleasant."

As soon as she had spoken she wished she hadn't. For Mrs. Bennett's lips were drooping, and the same tired, despairing look that Fleur looked so much to see came back into her blue eyes.

"I'd rather sell the ermine coat, Fleur."

If she could only make her mother see that it was best. That after the first plunge, she would enjoy going out, seeing people again. That it hurt at first to realize you were no longer a Bennett of Sutton Place but after a while it didn't matter so much...

"If I have to, I will, Fleur."

"You don't have to, mother. We're making all right the way we are, but I thought a job would take your mind off—things. It has mine."

"Nothing will ever take my mind off—things. And if we need money we'd better sell the coat."

"We don't need it that badly—yet. I'll take some more clothes down to Mrs. Rafton's tomorrow to get money to meet the rent. What about that black suit with the fur that you have? You don't need it, do you?"

help show a good customer a good time. What we object to is being doctored for it."

"It's always the model, she says, who pays—and pays."

"TAKE my own experience," she urged. "Last winter I had to model some backless evening dresses for some buyers who were smoking cigars. Pretty soon the room grew stuffy and one of them opened a window. You can guess what happened to me."

"I caught a terrible cold, got the flu, and was in bed two weeks. But did anyone offer to pay my doctor's bill?" A mocking smile lifted the corners of her bright red lips. "And I was doctored two weeks' pay besides."

For years, Chicago's model maids have eyed with envy the benefits, sick and otherwise, lifted the covers of their bright red lips. "And I was doctored two weeks' pay besides."

Members of the new union believe it will not be long until the rest of the city's 300 professional posers join their organization.

Wash your milk bottles thoroughly before returning them to the milk company with which you deal. It is not only more sanitary but the bottle look a lot better outside your door than half-washed bottles.

A hot-water bottle should be filled about three-quarters full never to capacity when used for warming a bed. When used to relieve pain, one-half full is plenty, as it will then give a soothing effect without proving too heavy for comfort.

Boss Your Own Life—Make Your Own Rights!

HERE are 12 quotations from women's letters.

It was a long and thoughtful, an unusual story of a woman's life—but it wasn't. Here is the story of a woman's life.

I could have lifted those quotations from anyone's letter; from anyone's life; from my own life. For, sooner or later, we all say things like this. Sometimes we never say anything else.

"My life is so miserable."

"I am so un-decided about everything. I don't know just what I ought to do."

"If I could only make decisions and carry them through, I should be a different person."

"People take terrible advantage of me."

"I can't sit down and cry, and cry, and cry."

"I keep thinking that things will change, somehow."

"Surely they can't go on like this forever."

"I feel so beaten! If I could only be filled with courage to face things."

"I guess I'll just have to go on hoping."

"SOUNDS familiar, doesn't it? NEVER KNOW WHAT TO DO."

"But why doesn't she?" you say. "It's up to her to know what to do. That's her business. Running her life is her business. She can't expect other people to make up her mind for her!"

"PEOPLE TAKE ADVANTAGE OF ME."

"Of course they do!" you say. "Such spinelessness! Why should people protect her? Why should her husband act as if she had rights when she could only be filled with COURAGE!"

"Isn't that just like some people, you see. 'Sitting around, expecting someone else to run things with a backbone. Envy other people because they have more character. Maybe she thinks they didn't work for their courage and good sense. She's lazy, then; too lazy to build a character for herself; and she's excusing it by a lot of self pity."

Yes, it's quite plain what all this woman. You can see it in her face, as you read her letter. As if she'd only follow your advice, her affairs would be fixed up in no time at all. That's what you're thinking, isn't it?

THINK WHY CAN'T YOU ANALYZE YOUR OWN PROBLEM AS QUICKLY? WHY CAN'T YOU SEE THAT IT'S UP TO YOU AS IT IS UP TO HER—to ROSS HER OWN LIFE AND DEFEND HER OWN RIGHTS?

WHY DON'T YOU FOLLOW YOUR OWN GOOD ADVICE? (Copyright, 1932.)

RESIDENT ARGUES FOR TARIFF ON WAY WEST

Addresses Several Thousand at Parkersburg, W. Va., Bound for Indianapolis Where He Will Speak Tonight.

ADVISERS TALK OF ST. LOUIS SPEECH

Strong Possibility He Will Come Here — Advisers Say Sentiment Against Boss Pendergast Helps His Chances in Missouri.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 25.—Campaign advisers with the President are planning to visit St. Louis today, a "strong possibility" that he would speak at a night meeting in St. Louis near the end of next week. Whether or not the President will go to St. Louis depends on his decision regarding a windup trip across the continent, but the plan has not been definitely decided, thought it likely that after a speech in New York next Monday night and a radio address in Washington on Wednesday, he would again, sally forth into the Middle Western battlefield—territory where he must make a strong showing if he is to win—and finish his campaign with a radio broadcast from Washington.

If this plan is carried out, his trip is expected to carry him first to Minneapolis for a night speech, then to Springfield, Ill., for a day speech, and then to St. Louis. This schedule would place him in St. Louis probably on Friday night. If the President decided on the tour, he will make speeches, among other places, at Denver, Salt Lake City and, on the Saturday night before election, at Los Angeles.

Feels He Is Gaining.

The President feels that he is steadily gaining ground and is determined, in the language of one of his close associates, to wage his "dogged" campaign to the end and about a letup. His tentative decision to speak in St. Louis appears to be due, in large measure, to recent advice that there is a general chance for him to carry Missouri. Three weeks ago Missouri had been virtually dismissed from republican calculations, but hopes have been raised by reports of a business men's swing to Hoover and of disaffection aroused among Democrats by the Statewide activities of Boss Pendergast of Kansas City.

"Hoover will carry Missouri," said one of the President's party, "he is not counted out by the Kansas City machine." On his fourth campaign invasion of the Middle West—this time for the purpose, in part, of bringing support to the hard-pressed Senator Watson of Indiana—President Hoover today continued his fervent preaching of the high protective tariff doctrine.

Best platform speeches were delivered at points in West Virginia, Ohio and Indiana, on the way to Indianapolis, where the President will speak at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Field House of Butler University.

A crowd of several thousand persons swarmed about the President's train at the first stop, Parkersburg, W. Va., at 8:30 a. m. and gave him and Mrs. Hoover a hearty greeting.

Here the President, in a five-minute talk, named Japan as a enemy from which goods were being imported into the United States, to the detriment of American industry, over the tariff wall. The statement was in line with previous remarks by the President on the "tariff" now suffered by American labor because of depreciated currencies and resultant lowered living standards abroad.

Owing to the fact, he said, that production costs in Japan were "abnormally low," Japanese ceramics and pottery were flowing into the United States and displacing American goods.

"This," he added, "is in large part the reason for the lowered production in your plants, with its consequent loss of working hours or jobs altogether."
